Army, Navy Planes Hunt Rickenbacker

Airliner-Bomber Crash Kills 12

SCOUR PACIFIC WHERE PLANE DISAPPEARED

World War Pilot Reported Flying to 'Island' In Bomber.

ON SECRET MISSION

Authorities Gloomy After Ace Flier Fails to Return, But Keep Up Hope.

(By United Press)

HONOLULU, Hawaii—Army and navy planes and surface vessels searched the sea south of the Hawaiian islands today for Captain E. V. (Eddie) Rickenbacker and the crew of a bombing plane which disappeared Wednesday evening.

At 8 a. m. (LWT) Rickenbacker, the plane, and its crew had been missing 60 hours and while authorities had not given up hope, they felt that prospects of finding them were 'gloomy.'

But there was hope. In addition to the chance that the plane had made an emergency landing in one of the countless atolls in the south Pacific and had been unabe to establish radio contact, there was the possibility that all the men were adrift on the life-raft with which the plane was equipped.

Land planes forced down at sea sink almost at once, but the life-rafts, painted a bright yellow in order that they can be spotted easily from the air, are easily launched. There have been cases since the war started of navy pilots drifting on them for as long as a month before being rescued.

Though the fortitude of the greatest American ace of the first World war is well known, he is now 52 years old and was seriously injured in an airplane crash near Atlanta, Ga., in 1941, and authorities feared that he might not have the physical stamina to endure prolonged exposure to the blistering south Pacific sun.

It was revealed in Washington

Lost In Pacific

Capt. Eddie V. Rickenbacker (above) who came through World War I as America's premier ace, has been long overdue on an aerial war mission in the mid Pacific. The U. S. war department announces. It was only 20 months ago that Rickenbacker miraculously escaped death in an airliner crash near Atlanta Ga. which claimed the lives of eight.

SONG WRITER AMONG DEAD IN COLLISION

Planes Ram Each Other In Mid-Air Over Desert Near Palm Springs.

(By International News Service)

PALM SPRINGS, Cal.—Collision with an army bomber was blamed by American Airlines officials today for the crash of their east-bound flight 28 luxury liner and the resultant loss of 12 lives.

Nine passengers, including Ralph Rainger noted Hollywood song writer and three crew members were killed when the big ship fell against the north slope of nearby Mt. San Jacinto peak.

In a statement received from New York Charles A. Rheinstrom American Airlines flight 28, east-bound from Los Angeles to New York, was in collision with an army bomber and crashed one-half mile west of Palm Springs."

Witnesses said part of the commercial plane broke away in mid-air after which it began to fall in spirals, striking a ledge about 1,000 feet up the mountain side.

The craft instantly broke into flames. Gasoline from the airliner's tanks was sprayed over a considerable area. Several bodies were thrown clear of the wreckage, but were burned by the flaming fuel.

A description of the crash was given by Fred Klug, of Palm Springs one of those who saw the mishap.

'The big plane was flying at about 1,000 feet," Klug said. 'It fell in a circling dive, crashed about 1,000 feet up from the desert floor, burst into flames and exploded.

"The plane was consumed by flames in a very short time."

The pilot of the bomber was understood to have bailed out safely.

King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain greet Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt (center) wife of the U. S. president, as she arrives in London after a flying trip across the Atlantic. FAVORS YEAR'S TRAINING PLAN

Senators Overriding Protest Of FDR on Teen-Age Draft Clause.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The senate today appeared ready to override presidential objections and prohibit sending of drafted 18-year-old youths into battle without a year's training. The ban may flatly include those under 20.

Administration leaders backed by President Roosevelt and Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, vigorously opposed the restriction in the 18-19 bill, but conceded that the tide was running against them.

A possible compromise under which a six-month ban would be imposed was discussed but first efforts to find a satisfactory compromise failed, and it appeared likely that there would be a showdown in the fight.

The outcome of the vote, scheduled for early afternoon, may be affected by the fact that several senators left the city to fulfill speaking engagements, and return of administration senators in response to an urgent call for aid.

Two major amendments stood in the path of early passage of the 18-19 bill. They were those by Sen. O'Daniel (D., Texas), prohibiting sending draftees under 20

U. S. Drafts Plan to Abandon Rights In China.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The United States today presented to China the draft of a treaty providing for the abandonment by the country of its extraterritorial rights in the Chinese republic.

The draft of the proposed treaty was handed to Chinese Ambassador Wei Tai-Ming by Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

America's willingness to abandon its extraterritorial rights in China is intended as evidence of this country's determination to recognize China's right to full equality in the family of nations.

Tells British We Need More Mutual Knowledge

Mrs. Roosevelt Gives Press Interview During Her Visit to England, Says She Has No Gas Mask.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, in her first conference with the British press, said today that she believed improvement of Anglo-American relations depend upon an increased knowledge by each people of the problems of the other.

Mrs. Roosevelt indicated that she believed the United States might eventually conscript women for labor.

'You come to everything as you need it," she said in reply to a question. "It is very difficult to make people realize the importance of some piece of work until it is actually very badly needed.

"Six months ago, talk of registration of labor caused an uproar among trade unions and congress, but today, many are crying, why aren't women working?"

Mrs. Roosevelt, who arrived yesterday as the guest of King George and Queen Elizabeth, replying to a reporter's question on the future of British-American relations, said:

"It depends upon the knowledge of people as to how close the feeling is. I think most people in England know little about America. Our history books begin with the American revolution.

"With such mutual lack of knowledge, I don't think we can get as close contact as we should without becoming very

'WE CAN LOSE'

Veteran of Three Battles In Pacific Warns Nation.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — A youthful veteran of three battles in the Southern Pacific today began a few weeks furlough while awaiting his next assignment, but his mood was serious and his prediction of the future of America gloomy unless "we snap out of it."

Robert W. Grundman, 18, seaman first class, told reporters: "So far we have had the jump on the Japs, but don't get it in your minds that we can't lose this war.

"People here at home don't seem to realize there is a war on and that there is an odd chance to lose. You haven't seen half the hardships the people in Australia are experiencing. There aren't any real hardships here."

BRICKER LAUDS HOME DEFENSE

Praises Civilian Volunteers, Defends Record In State Finance Program.

Praising the 600,000 civilian defense volunteers in the state for their "loyalty and patriotism," Gov. John W. Bricker, addressing a campaign rally last night in Mansfield said 'Ohio is ready to fight this thing through."

The governor, Republican candidate for re-election spoke before an overflow crowd of more than 1,000 persons at Radio City hall. He addressed a meeting earlier in the evening at Ashland and went to Galion from Mansfield.

"Ohio is as patriotic as you'll find anyplace and there's no place in the state that has responded more loyally to the request for defense volunteers than the Mansfield section," Gov. Bricker said. "It makes you feel good when you feel the throb of the patriotism and loyalty of the people throughout Ohio.

'We now have more plants engaged in war production (100 of them—than any other state and more people working in war industries than any other state except Pennsylvania" he continued.

"Men and women everywhere are volunteering their services to defend the state and nation and

Police Win Race With Suspect In Series of Thefts

Winning a race at 1:30 a. m. today, Mansfield police captured a colored youth who readily confessed several home burglaries during recent weeks.

Responding to a report from George O'Dell, 40 Douglas avenue, that a prowler had been seen in the neighborhood, Captain Paul Whipp and Patrolmen Earl Korn, Floyd Bowers and John Grohol sighted the youth in the vicinity of Brinkerhoff school.

Bowers took over the first lap of the chase around the school building and into nearby alleys. In turn, Korn and Grohol took up the pursuit, finally reversing the course and trapping the suspect. Korn, attempting a flying tackle at one point, made a belly-crash landing on concrete but today reported his landing gear in walking—and sitting—order.

U.S. Fighters Pace Attack Against Axis

Sweep Luftwaffe From Skies In 'Big Push' Along El Alamein Line; Foe's Air Bases Plastered With Bombs As Eighth Army Moves Forward.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(UP)—The Exchange Telegraph agency reported from Alexandria today that British naval forces attacked Axis coastal positions near Mersa Matruh during the night.

(By United Press)

BRITISH BATTLE HEADQUARTERS, Egyptian Desert—Paced by American and British fighting planes which virtually drove the Luftwaffe from the skies, the British Eighth army rolled forward today in a North African offensive which may prove the most decisive action of the war in this theater.

The attack started yesterday and gathered force with a big push forward along the Alamein line in the hours before daylight today.

An American army air force communique revealed that U. S. air squadrons were in the thick of the battle and American tank units were operating with the armored squadrons of the Eighth army.

Battle reports revealed that the terrific air preparation by British, American and Allied squadrons had virtually driven the Luftwaffe from the sky. Their bases and landing grounds had been plastered for nearly 10 days by day and night bombing attacks.

An American communique, issued shortly after the offensive started rolling, said that U. S. fighter squadrons participated in strafing and bombing attacks of the forward Axis landing grounds and carried out escort missions for Allied fighter-bombers in the initial phase of the attack.

There were indications that Marshal Erwin Rommel was concerned not only with the frontal attack along the Alamein line but was also worried about his rear positions. Highly mobile forces have not been idle.

(This appeared to indicate that striking forces may have skirted the desert lines and fallen on Rommel from behind.)

Allied air attacks have been directed not only at enemy air bases

DEEPER: Soviets Penetrating German Lines Near Stalingrad

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—Battlefront dispatches said today that Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's powerful relief offensive northwest of Stalingrad had smashed deeper into German lines at three points, killing 1,000 more Nazis.

Timoshenko's pressure against the Germans was unrelenting, these dispatches said and his men were attacking night and day over steppes boggy with the slush of a recent snow.

The Soviet noon communique reported that his men had driven into a German fortified zone.

The defenders of Stalingrad itself hurled back desperate new attacks against a vital factory in the northwestern part of the city and ran German losses up to at least 1,400 men killed and 15 tanks in 24 hours.

In northwestern Stalingrad, the Russians have not budged from positions they were holding five days ago.

Timoshenko's drive steadily gained momentum, and it seemed that he soon might realize his plan of slicing through the German left flank and trapping the Nazis at Stalingrad between his army and the defenders, fighting with their backs to the Volga within the city.

(Reports reaching London said that Timoshenko's onslaught against the German flank was stronger than ever and was nearing

SMASHED: 3 Jap Ships Sunk, Six Others Damaged In Attack

(By International News Service)

GEN. DOUGLAS MARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia—A Japanese cruiser, a destroyer and two large cargo ships were definitely believed to have been sunk and six others damaged in a devastating attack on the harbor of Rabaul it was announced today in a communique.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said the concentration of Japanese warships and other vessels lying at anchor off the New Britain island port was hit with 'deadly effect' by a "strong force" of bombers.

America's huge flying forts struck by the light of a tropical moon just before dawn yesterday and unleashed 500-pound bombs. In addition to the cruiser, destroyer and two large merchant ships believed sunk, six other vessels, including a large cargo ship, were blasted. The communique said the latter was badly damaged.

The Rabaul raid, among the heaviest ever carried out in the South Pacific, was designed as a definite action in support of United States forces battling the Japs in the Solomons. At least 50,000 tons of enemy shipping was sunk or damaged in the assault.

The huge four-motored bombers were met by heavy anti-aircraft fire both from ships in the harbor and shore batteries but every plane returned to its base. No attempt was made by Japanese aircraft to intercept.

In his official announcement Gen. MacArthur indicated that Lieut. Gen. George Kenney, commander of Allied air forces in the southwest Pacific, specially designed this latest attack to assist the hard-pressed forces of Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley in the Solomons.

It has become increasingly apparent that the majority of Gen. MacArthur's operations of the past two weeks have been directed toward relieving Japanese pressure in the upper Solomons area.

WIFE AWAITS

Mrs. Rickenbacker Hopes For Good News of Missing Mate.

NEW YORK—Mrs. E. V. Rickenbacker sat by her telephone today, hoping for the best, but fearing the worst.

"There is nothing I can do—nothing," she said. "That is what makes it hard. I just sit here and wait."

Lieut. Gen. Henry Arnold telephoned her from Washington yesterday that her husband was missing.

With forced jollity, she said: "Oh, I'm used to waiting for news that Eddie has arrived. He always has spent a lot of his time going places. He's not reckless and he knows the air. And he always has said that he's the darling of lady luck."

ANKARA—(Delayed)—(AP)—Hundreds of carloads of equipment from dismantled French and Belgian petroleum refineries are being moved through Rumania en route to the North Caucasus, where the Germans have captured the outer ring of Russia's rich Caucasusian oil fields, reports from the Balkans said today.

The reports, relayed through usually reliable channels, said the Germans already had rebuilt one refinery at Maikop in the eastern Caucasus, which they occupied last August.

MART LEADERS WORK BACK ON RECOVERY ROAD

Industrial Production Has More Than Seasonal Boost In Output.

NEW YORK — Stock market leaders got back on the recovery road in today's early transactions.

At a fairly active opening gainers of fractions to a point or so included Du Pont, International Nickel, U. S. Steel, Consolidated Edison, N. Y. Central and Sears Roebuck.

Some market optimism was derived from the federal reserve board's summary disclosing that its index of industrial production advanced more than seasonally in September. It was up two points at 185 per cent of the 1935-39 average.

Not so pleasing to analysts was the survey of the National Lumber Manufacturers association indicating both production and shipments in this field during the week ended Oct. 17 were under the preceding week and the comparable period a year ago.

REDS PENETRATE GERMAN LINES

Drive More Deeply Into Nazi Positions Northwest Of Stalingrad.

ing German main defensive positions northwest of Stalingrad.)

The Germans threw 6,000 men and many heavy tanks yesterday into continuous attacks against a factory fortress in northwestern Stalingrad where they hoped to reach the Volga. Their efforts availed them nothing but heavy losses.

It was the 11th day of a supreme German effort to crash through the northwestern part of Stalingrad.

The Russians, however, suffered another setback southeast of Novorossisk, former Soviet Black sea base, from which the Germans were trying to drive down the coast. The noon communique acknowledged that numerically superior enemy forces had driven across a water barrier, but said Soviet troops had counter-attacked and inflicted heavy losses.

On the other Caucasian front—the Mozdok area to the east, where the Germans had vainly tried to drive to the Mozdok oil fields—cold weather and flooded streams appeared to have forced a lull.

Red Star said the Germans had been pinned to practically the same positions for two months in the Terek valley, where fighting in the Mozdok area was concentrated.

German losses, Red Star said, were almost "unprecedented."

(The German Trans-Ocean agency quoted military quarters that German troops had broken through the Red October foundry in northwest Stalingrad, "the last Stalingrad bulwark," and in flanking movements right and left had encircled the defenders.

("Heavy downpours" in the northern and central fronts have made morasses of "many fighting areas," the agency said.

(Radio Vichy said German newspapers had announced the killing of artillery General Schultz in Russia.)

THEATERS

Musical Comedy.

A night club singer with a heart of gold is the central character in "Panama Hattie," the elaborate film musical at the Ohio. Ann Sothern plays the lead with Red Skelton as a sparring partner. Skelton portrays the sailor sworn to protect the singer. Cole Porter tunes, Lena Horne, colored singer, and two comics, Rags Ragland and Ben Blue are other attractions along with several pretentious production numbers.

Rollicking Romance.

An eye-defect doesn't prevent a young army major from seeing through the juvenile masquerade of an attractive young lady in "The Major and the Minor," Ginger Rogers' new comedy, at the Madison. The disguise is promptly by lack of full fare for a train ride although the "get-up" doesn't fool the conductors. Ray Milland plays the major role and the cast has Rita Johnson and Robert Benchley. Lloyd Noland appears in the second picture, "Apache Trail."

Lively Plot.

Rosalind Russell and Fred MacMurray furnish the laughs in "Take a Letter Darling," the Ritz headliner, based on the business-getting proclivities of a high-powered lady advertising executive and the young man she hires as secretary to placate the jealous wives of prospective clients. Macdonald Carey, Gertrude Lawrence's leading man in "Lady in the Dark," has an important role and Robert Benchley is in the picture. Red Skelton and Ann Sothern are teamed in "Maisie Gets Her Man," the second film.

Musical Western.

Gene Autry's starring vehicle, "Call of the Canyon," opening Sunday at the Park tells the engaging story of a cowboy who outsmarts a city slicker. Gene plays the spokesman for a cattlemen's group that falls victim to an unscrupulous packing company. Ruth Terry, John Holland and Cliff Nazarro are in the cast. Lum and Abner in "The Bashful Bachelor," with Zasu Pitts is the second attraction.

PASSING DREAM

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

(Copyright, 1942.)

CHAPTER XXIV

She was arrogant, a challenge to men, a fear to women who would admire her and want to know her and imitate her. She would be self-centered without being selfish and she would get up and leave a party if she was not having a good time and her conscience would give her no bother. She would talk well both to taxi drivers and diplomats and she would meet a man as an equal.

Thalia sat in the most comfortable chair in the room and threw her coat off her shoulders. She was wearing a dark red suit.

Temple sat on the day bed. Her hands were cold, her head warm.

She said, "I've been expecting you. Captain McCormick told me you were coming up to see me. How is your mother?"

"Mother? Fine." Her voice was resonant and rich. She could laugh at many things. She probably could laugh a good bit at herself. She looked at Temple and smiled. "You've been having a beastly time. I'm terribly sorry. Mother wanted to come in my place. She came up with me. She was afraid I'd be tactless. I probably will be because I'm no good at soothing things over. In fact, I don't think that this is something that should be smoothed over."

"You don't have to with me."

"Thanks. Of course I knew that you were married some months ago. I suppose he told me as a warning or a threat . . . At any rate, he told me. He was crazy about flying . . . The bug really got him and he went up whenever he could. It was strictly an out-of-the-service sort of flying when he was on his own time. That day something happened to the motor . . . It happened so quickly . . . They didn't have a chance . . . I knew Lieutenant Jennings, too . . . Fine chap . . . Jud's mother came down."

She looked at Temple. "Have you met her? Of all the prize fools I've ever known!" She shook her head. "She seemed to think that the louder she wailed the more she convinced us of her sorrow. She didn't fool anybody. She behaved abominably about the whole thing."

Temple said, "I was going up to Boston, but when Captain McCormick called there, it was too late. I couldn't have been in Florida in time."

"You should be eternally glad you missed it. I hope I never get tangled up with that woman again. She stayed with us. She drove me wild."

"Then . . . that's all?" said Temple.

Thalia looked about the room, but she wasn't really seeing the room. She shook her head again. "Not really all. Here is where I shall probably be tactless. Here's the part my mother didn't want you to know. She didn't know until after the accident . . . I told her and I'd like to tell you what I knew about Jud. He talked to me. It's easier to talk to a girl you are not in love with. Then there's no danger of shattering the illusion."

"I don't think Jud wanted me to have any illusions about him."

Thalia looked at her. "But he didn't want you to know that he was a coward about the war. He didn't want to go into the service. He hated the whole idea. He was patriotic in that he didn't want us to lose the war, but he didn't want to contribute anything toward winning it. You see, Jud was a snob of the first order. The idea of rubbing shoulders with boys who had not gone to the best schools was distinctly distasteful to him. He loathed the common, earthy type. He enlisted only when the draft board was hot on his trail."

"He told you this?"

Thalia lifted her brows. Then she smiled. "You don't believe me, do you?"

Temple frowned. She said softly, "Yes, yes, I do believe you. I don't want to, but I do. It makes it all add up correctly. You say he wasn't in love with you?"

"He was attracted to me."

"You're the boss' daughter."

Thalia smiled again. "So you know that, too. He wasn't in love with me, but he'd have married me . . . because I'm the boss' daughter."

"It was his bad break then that he met me first."

"You catch on quickly. I was crazy about him." She shrugged. "Why should I deny it? Why should I deny anything concerning him now? He was sweet and he was bitter and he was lovable and he was charming. He had something for me that no other man I've ever known has had. He loved you . . . You were his dream girl. You are everything his mother is not and in his heart he had nothing but pity and contempt for her. She'd been a rotten mother and he knew it." She leaned forward. "He loved you, Temple, but he knew that your marriage was a mistake and he blamed himself unmercifully for giving you little choice about it. He was older; he'd been around and he should have known better, he thought. He wasn't the man for you when the war is over and he knew that if he came back and you tried out marriage, it wouldn't go. He was unstable and fickle. He hated responsibilities and burdens. He'd have hated being an average husband and he'd have been no good with children. And he was a snob. He'd always have been in debt trying to keep up with the Joneses."

Temple lowered her head. The tears had begun to burn her eyes again.

Thalia said, "But that isn't all. He loved flying. He wanted to fly more than anything else in the world and he changed his mind about the service after a few weeks."

Temple lifted her head. "He was happy in Florida. I saw that."

The other girl nodded. "The thing that he thought he was going to hate he loved. He was crazy about the boys at the base. They were wholesome and good fun. Jud had never been able to take criticism and discipline. But he learned to respect his officers. But that's not the point I'm trying to make. The point is that Jud wanted to fly. The obstruction in his nose could easily have been removed in a minor operation and he qualified as a flier in every other respect. But he couldn't be a flier because he was married. They'll probably lift that ban now that we're in the war . . . but it's too late for him. That's probably the most tactless thing I've said."

Temple was hurting all over. "I told you you need not smooth things over for me."

"My mother wanted to come and see you and leave you with some beautiful thought to carry on with. She's devoted to you. But it seemed to me that it was better to put a pretty awful truth behind you and try to forget the whole thing rather than to have a beautiful untrue thought to carry on with. You'd be just kidding yourself and spoiling your future happiness."

"Regrets and mistakes. That's what it all means."

"You were sorry, too?"

"Yes. In Florida it was different. I don't suppose we were in love with each other then. I didn't know. I knew it wasn't the same and he was different. It didn't matter that he didn't make love to me. I was happy without it."

"Part of Jud's attitude to you when you were in Florida was an act. He told me about that."

"He told you everything."

Thalia shrugged. "Just about. He wanted to send you back to Washington completely out of love with him and utterly disgusted with him. But he lost his nerve and couldn't go through with it."

"So that I'd divorce him?"

"Eventually, yes."

"So that when he came back, he'd come back to you."

"He didn't say that. He never told me that. But I'd have taken him. I probably would have waited for him if he had asked me to wait. You see, if he had not had to worry about getting the things he wanted and living the kind of life he wanted he'd always have been charming and lovable. He'd have had no scruples about living on my money. That's why we'd have been happy together. But I'd have hated to be poor with him. I know. I tried being relatively poor once and I loathed it. I simply couldn't tolerate it." She drew her coat over her shoulders. "I hope you are glad that I came rather than my mother."

"I am," Temple said.

"You'll hate the memory of me. It doesn't particularly matter. I'm flattered that you've listened and believed me. So many girls would scream and cry and kick me out and not believe a word of it. They wouldn't want to know the facts. It's very comforting to live with a memory, to go on living on it as a drug. Nice, rosy dreams of all that might have been . . . I think you're smarter than that, Temple. Jud wasn't your man and I've lost more than you because he was my man. I have a reputation for lacing sentiment, but I think I'm pretty sound on essentials. Well, I promised Mother I'd go shopping with her."

She arose. Temple got up. Thalia towered over her.

Temple asked, "How long are you going to be in Washington?"

"Only until after Christmas day. I want to get back to the golf and the war work. But we'll have Christmas day with Dad."

"Then I won't see your mother. I'm going home."

"Good for you!" She held out her hand and smiled. "Temple, take off your wedding ring. You're not married anymore. And you should thank God you were spared Mrs. Amory-Whitridge as a mother-in-law. Good-bye, darling. You look as if you're pretty sound on essentials, too. You're lovely . . . I've been jealous of your looks . . . I found my way in this place so I'm sure I can find my way out."

Temple closed the door and leaned against it. Then she went to the closet and took out her traveling bags. After she opened one bag, she straightened and slowly drew her wedding ring from her finger. Keep it, she thought. Keep it to remember a dream that passed . . . She dropped it in the pocket of the bag.

She wrote Abby, Paula and Harry brief notes, telling them that she was going home.

Snow fell on Christmas eve and blanketed the campus.

Temple's home-coming had been happy, with Allison dancing about her and shouting and Mrs. Graves doing the things she liked best to do—being an active and useful mother to a returning child. It was not until Allison had gone to bed, and they were sitting before the fire that she told the family. It was the most difficult thing she had ever done to tell them that she had been secretly married and that her husband had died in an airplane crash in Florida.

Her mother had looked at Temple as though she could not believe her capable of so secret an act. But they said little. Grandmother Hallett was so old that she had used up her tears long ago and Edith had felt the speechlessness that comes to almost everyone on the subject of death. They had asked Temple a few questions and if they were amazed that she showed little emotion, they did not question her lack of it. They had never known Jud and it was enough for them that Temple had come home where she belonged, and would have Christmas with them.

They were, of course, concerned for her innermost feelings and her loss but they would never be quite unhappy about it. To them it was a dream that had come from Temple's pale lips, a marriage and a death not quite real. There was nothing, they thought, that their love and care could not heal in time. Both Grandmother Hallett and Edith were at their best when they had someone to love and heal. In time to come they would think of the marriage less and less.

The normal rhythm of the life at home, the wholesomeness, the rest and the love and care brought Temple back to clear thinking and sharp sensations again. She felt as though she were emerging from a deep coma. She knew that she could not regard Jud, as "out" once and for all with the new and lucid understanding that Thalia Santos had given her of him and think of him no more.

No human relationship is ever completely finished. There is always a residue, a mark that remains. All her life she would remember him and think of him. Nor would she ever quite cease blaming herself that she had been the obstacle in his way of obtaining that which in the end he had wanted most. It was so clear to her now that had there not been a war she and Jud never would have married. She saw, too, that their love had been a drug for both of them in critical times.

For Jud their love had been a brief escape from rebellion. For her it had been a brief escape from family problems and from her rebellion at a job she had never wanted and never liked. Love had absorbed their rebellion. Because circumstances would not permit them to run away from themselves they had used love as a cure and a scapegoat.

THE FIRST THING SHE DID WAS TO SEND FOR HER LAWYER AND HAD HIM BUY $1,000 WORTH OF BONDS FOR EVERY PENNY YOU HAD IN YOUR BOOK! AND THAT'S ONLY THE BEGINNING!

HOLLYWOOD

(One of a series by Hollywood Columnist Robbin Coons, who is touring the U. S. A.)

NEW YORK — Memoirs of a visiting fireman.

What these pieces have been lacking is Class. They've got to have Celebrities scattered around more. Okay, then, we'll hunt some. Where do you go when you hunt celebrities? Well, we can start at "21." Upstairs. Noon. The place is practically deserted except for half a million waiters. Then all of a sudden it's filled up, and the waiters are scurrying about, if you can call such superior, elegant motions scurrying.

Coons

Ha! There's a fellow from Hollywood. It's a funny thing but I'd know his name if I saw him in the Derby. I know I would. Here—who IS that guy anyway?

HA! Adrienne Ames. You remember her—came to Hollywood married to Stephan Ames, the rich one, but she wanted a career, too. Stephen Ames, after the divorce, married Raquel Torres, and Ardienne's on Broadway now.

Ha! Hal Wallis and Casey Robinson. They're waiting for Irving Berlin to talk over "This Is The Army." Ha! That's about all the celebrities around today, unless you count all the vaguely familiar persons who are probable celebrities, known to every Broadwayfarer but not to a Hollywood hinterlander.

We better try the Stork club. After the show, of course. Which show? Why, "Star and Garter," of course. That's what they're all seeing.

SO IT'S the Stork then. It's packed to the doors, and more coming. "No reservations? Sorry." That simplifies things. We can just imagine the spot jam-packed with Celebrities.

So it's le Ruban Bleu. It's a room draped with—one guess!—blue. It's full of dime-sized tables and customers and clouds of cigarette smoke and chatter and tinkling glasses and a platform for the entertainers. There's Fred Keating with gags and card tricks, and a lady harpist whose playing is very nice and makes people say "S-h-h!" because they want to hear.

There's Maxine Sullivan, reduced by lighting effects to a disembodied sepia face with red lips and sparkling eyes, and tones swinging soft and golden from her throat, easy as soap bubbles cascading from a pipe.

Then the lights go on, and we can look for a Celebrity. And sure enough, there's one. Just one. Mildred Natwick, the hit of "Blithe Spirit."

This is very discouraging. I guess we'll have to get along without Class.

DENIES CHARGE OHIO PENSIONS ARE JUGGLED

Babb Calls Ferguson Attack 'Ridiculous and Not Backed by Records.'

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Karl R. Babb, head of the Ohio division of Aid for the Aged, today characterized as "ridiculous and not supported by records" State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson's assertion that Gov. John W. Bricker manipulated pensions for political advantage.

Governor Bricker observed: "There is no more truth in this statement than in most of the rest of Mr. Ferguson's political announcements."

Ferguson, unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the August primary, said yesterday he had asked President Roosevelt to order an investigation by the federal social security board of "political juggling" of pension funds.

Ferguson said his request followed a "secret" three-weeks' inquiry after Bricker's order several weeks ago to boost pensions about 10 per cent to offset increased living expenses for the last quarter of 1942.

Ferguson asserted October increases ranged from one cent to more than $20 and that when November lists were issued he noted numerous reductions, some even below September allowances.

Babb reported an analysis of November certifications for 20 counties showed 1,099 increases aggregating $5,013, compared with 387 decreases totaling $1,481.

"Last month the average payment climbed to $26.81, the highest in the eight and one-half year history of the division," Babb said, adding "this was $4.23 more than the $22.58 average grant in January of 1939 when Governor Bricker assumed office."

Babb added that the plan for applying increases on the basis of need had been approved by the federal social security board. He explained that decreases were made after surveys showed a change in recipients' needs.

Detectives Leave Lunch to Wound Would-Be Robbers

AKRON—(U.P.)—While two detectives were in the kitchen eating, two men tried to hold up an Akron restaurant early today. The detectives left their meal and wounded the robbers in a brief gun fight.

Detectives Thomas Sanders and Robert Goodman exchanged a dozen shots with the men. They said that it was "a miracle" that none of the restaurant's customers was hit.

A 17-year-old boy who said he was George J. Nolan of Cleveland was wounded seriously in the stomach and right leg. Cleveland police believed that he is George Bekay. He stood by the cash register and fired the first four shots before Sanders shot him.

John Fandel, 34, of Cleveland, was wounded while standing guard at the door. Goodman shot the gun out of his hand. Police said Fandel has a long criminal record.

ONE NEW CASE

Ontario Typhoid Fever Cases Reach Total of 22.

With one additional typhoid fever case reported today in the Ontario region, bringing the total to 22, city-county health department authorities still are seeking the carrier source of the malady.

Eight wells in the region have been abandoned pending purification of their water supplies. Although classes have been dismissed until Nov. 2 or until the fever epidemic has abated, students of Springfield township centralized school will undergo their third and final immunization treatment next Thursday.

EX-OSU COACH BURIED TODAY

Rites Held at Cedar Rapids For J. E. Blickle, Victim Of Auto Crash.

(By Associated Press)

IOWA CITY, Ia. — Lieut. John Edward Blickle would have led his Naval pre-flight school "Seahawks" football team to battle with Wisconsin university's "B" squad here today.

Instead, funeral services for the 37-year-old former assistant football and basketball coach at Ohio State university will be held in Turney chapel at Cedar Rapids, Ia., burial will be in Ironton, O., his boyhood home.

Lieut. Blickle, battalion commander at the pre-flight school and coach of its junior varsity gridders, was killed in an automobile collision about 35 minutes after leaving the home of Miss Kathryn Lynch in Cedar Rapids Thursday night. Friends there said they had planned to marry soon.

Lieut. Joe Truskowski, a member of Blickle's coaching staff and captain of Michigan university's 1929 football team, assumed command of the Seahawk's for today's game.

Sheriff's Deputy Harlan Snyder said at Cedar Rapids that Blickle's car and one operated by Earl N. Chadd, 32, of Cedar Rapids collided on a curve about seven miles south of that city.

Chadd, who was injured slightly, was charged with manslaughter. His passenger, Connie Conklin, 35, suffered a fractured collarbone.

REPORT NORMAL COFFEE SUPPLY

Government Sources Say Stocks Possibly Above Usual Amount.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Despite some local shortages of coffee, the stocks of the nation's favorite breakfast beverage are at least normal and perhaps above, informed government sources said today.

On an unofficial and anonymous basis, these officials attributed the shortages, not caused by hoarding and overbuying, to the war production board's 35 per cent cut in the amount available to consumers—prompted by uncertainties of shipping.

The coffee stocks, however, generally are kept at only a two to three months supply level. Government rationing officials refused to discuss possibility of coffee rationing.

Reston received a $50 war bond as prize.

Kiplinger, graduate of Ohio State university and formerly on the staff of the Ohio State Journal, became widely known through publication of his Washington news letter for business men.

Mrs. DePew Head, executive chairman of the library and chairman at today's banquet, described Reston's book as "a forceful, penetrating statement of what the United States and the United Nations must do to win the war."

Reston, born in Scotland in 1909, served as a reporter on the Springfield News, as athletic publicist for Ohio State university, and publicity director for the Cincinnati Reds. He then joined the staff of the Associated Press in New York, and was in London for the Associated Press and the New York Times until his recent return to this country.

Louis Bromfield, Mansfield novelist, was one of the judges.

Up and Down THE STREET

The call to the armed services wasn't the only complication calling for doubling-up operation here at The News-Journal today. Conventions were doing their bit, too. Esther Smith and Betty Strother from the editorial department were in Cincinnati attending the Ohio Newspaper Women's association convention, and P. M. Wragg, composing room foreman and Carl Graham, composing room copy-cutter, were in Columbus attending sessions of the Ohio Typographical conference. Otherwise, things were about normal.

A Cline avenue resident may have no further worries about gasoline rationing, but he may be deeply concerned over tire rationing problems, if he still has an auto. This morning he reported that on Oct. 10 he loaned his auto, valued at $450, to a young woman. He told police he is convinced she has had ample time to complete her proposed journey to Crestline and return.

At least one section of the army isn't so enthusiastic about having the WACCS move in on what has been traditionally a man's domain, according to a Mansfield soldier now home on furlough. He reports: "When our commanding officer heard WAACS were coming on duty at our post, he let out a grunt. 'They think they're soldiers,' he said. 'All right, you go on talking and acting like soldiers. And if you want to walk to the showers in your underwear, go ahead!'"

Owing to the acute labor shortage in some Ohio cities, the postman will only be ringing once, according to an announcement by postal authorities at Lorain, where such a curtailment will be made. Such a move is not expected to be immediately necessary in Mansfield, however, Postmaster Herman E. Homberger said. Postmaster William Moriarity of Lorain reported that 10 per cent of his employes were now serving with the armed forces.

AUTO INDUSTRY SEES BIGGEST JOB TO COME

Manufacturers Grinding Out $17,000,000 Worth of Armaments Daily.

(By United Press)

DETROIT—The automotive industry reached the halfway mark of its giant war production effort today just two years after Lieut. Gen. William S. Knudsen asked it to help aircraft manufacturers with the nation's first "big bomber" program.

The former passenger car builders are grinding out armament for America's fighting forces at the rate of $17,000,000 daily, a production volume already 50 per cent greater than peak peacetime output of automobiles and trucks.

But the "big push" on the industry's $15,000,000,000 worth of war orders lies ahead. Next year, provided materials are available in sufficient quantities, the industry's war production should nearly triple its peacetime record of 5,350,000 units annually.

Knudsen gathered 100 industry leaders around him in a vacated grocery store Oct. 25, 1940, asked them to undertake production of about $50,000,000 in parts for medium and heavy bombers to be assembled by aircraft manufacturers. They agreed, established the automotive committee for air defense and began parcelling out the work under the guidance of Brigadier James H. (Jimmy) Doolittle, then a major.

Within a few months the industry's "big three"—General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler—and Briggs, Murray and Hudson had become prime contractors for complete bombers, subassemblies and parts. It was the first time that car manufacturers, long noted for their intense rivalry, joined hands on a common project.

Knudsen and Doolittle succeeded in arranging what the latter described as "a peacetime wedding of the aircraft and automotive industries without benefit of a shotgun."

Since October, 1940, automotive companies, 10 of whom already are in production on airframe assemblies, have delivered more than 1,000,000,000 in aircraft equipment, including frames, engines and other parts. The present rate of output is $4,500,000 daily and climbing steadily.

Meantime, the industry has shattered all of its previous employment records. It now employs 850,000 men and women, an increase of 100,000 over the peacetime peak and 230,000 over the low point reached last February when automobile production was halted abruptly.

Ship Production Certain to Meet War Output Goal

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Ships emerged today as the sole armament category in which the country's war plants were certain to meet—and probably surpass—the 1942 "blueprint for victory" goal announced by President Roosevelt last January.

The president's disclosure in yesterday's press conference that the production program was being revised to turn out fewer but harder hitting warplanes and tanks occasioned no stir in War Production Board circles where the fact has been accepted that shifting strategic needs have necessitated some major shifts in production emphasis.

An informed WPB source, who requested he remain anonymous, predicted that around 45,000 warplanes would be produced this year, instead of the 60,000 called for in January.

But the emphasis since early in the year has been increasingly on heavier, long-range craft.

Attainment of the anti-aircraft gun objective—20,000—is not certain, the WPB source said.

Ships, however, outshine any other major element in the four-point presidential program. Eight million deadweight tons were asked. The president will get that and perhaps 10 per cent more unless WPB calculations are awry.

BRITISH ROLL AHEAD IN NEW AFRICAN ATTACK

U. S. Fighters Pave Way For Big Offensive Against Rommel's Troops.

at Dba, Fuqa, Sidi Heneish and Qutofiya but also at the supply ports of Mersa Matruh, Tobruk, and Benghazi.

Meanwhile on the other end of these lines, bombers have plastered Navarino bay, Greece, Suda bay, Crete, seaborne convoys. And in the last two days RAF heavy squadrons have blasted Genoa, the north Italy supply port.

(The eighth army's offensive brought to culmination an unprecedented wave of rumors and reports indicating that the Allies were about to launch a general attack on Axis positions in north Africa. Axis and Vichy sources have openly expressed fears that an allied move against West Africa objectives such as Dakar and Morocco may be launched concident with the new drive in the eastern desert.)

The initial reports rushed back to this battle headquarters of the desert army did not indicate the full scope of the imperial attack.

However, with the powerful reinforcements known to be available it seemed certain that major effort to smash Rommel's power in the eastern desert was underway. Whether the offensive was timed to coordinate with other blows against the enemy was not known

The United States army air force which has been flying wing-to-wing with the Royal Air Force for weeks was presumed to be in the thick of the fighting—with both fighter and bomber elements.

American desert tank crews—their extent still unrevealed—were working in similar close proximity to British formations.

Supported by strong aerial formations, the British and Imperials launched the attack and terrific fighting developed. The battle still was raging fiercely today.

The battle centered about Alamein, where the British stopped Rommel early last summer, with heavy losses. Allied air forces have gradually wrested air superiority from the enemy since.

The land attack was preceded by another in the continuing series of allied air attacks against Rommel's positions. Allied bombers struck hard at the Axis landing fields, hoping to cripple Rommel's Italian and German air arm

The communique divulged few details of the fighting.

"The eighth army, with strong air support, attacked last night," it said. "Fierce fighting developed and is continuing.

"Allied air forces during Thursday night and yesterday continued their pressure on enemy landing grounds in the forward area. In combat yesterday we destroyed eight enemy fighters and damaged many others."

The offensive, which observers believed would develop into the battle to decide the fate of north Africa once and for all, appeared to be following the approved desert pattern.

The air attacks, as in the past, were directed against areas just behind the front where Axis fighters are berthed and the forward munition dumps are accumulated.

For several weeks, there had been increasing indications that a new offensive—either allied or axis—was impending in the desert

The eighth army, it had been disclosed, had received strong reinforcements, including quantities of American-made tanks, planes and materials, and the Royal Air Force held an air superiority it had never enjoyed outside of England.

It also was apparent that the axis was seeking to reinforce Rommel's forces. For two weeks, they had been sending swarms of planes against Malta, the British Mediterranean fortress dominating the supply routes to Africa.

The eighth army's attack broke a seven-week lull which began after Rommel's effort to smash through the Alamein line and wheel northward to the coast had been frustrated.

It was uncertain whether Rommel was in Egypt now.

During the last 14 days, British and American planes gradually have been stepping up the tempo of their desert attacks, coincidentally with larger scaled raids in Europe. Especially bitter was the air war over Malta, where the axis had lost 129 bombers and fighters

Today's communique told of the continuing air battle over Malta.

It was apparent that the axis air force was feeling the effect of the heavy toll taken at Malta. Scores of planes had been lost there which ordinarily would have been sent to Rommel in Africa.

Shot Sister, Now He's Sorry

Tears flowing down his cheeks, 15-year-old William Lyngvar of Patton township, a Pittsburgh suburb, is shown asking to see his sister, Jean, 8, near death in a hospital from a bullet wound he had inflicted several days ago. After shooting his sister, William fled to the woods. He had been home only six months after being released from an industrial school and had been cowering the family with the shotgun for a week much more understanding about each other's problems, hopes and aspirations. If such understanding comes, there are bound to be close bonds since we will have a common objective."

Mrs. Roosevelt wore a simple black dress with embroidery at the neck, and a pancake hat with a gold pin. She was accompanied by her secretary, Malvina Thompson, who flew with her to England

She said she had dinner with the king and queen in the palace last night. Her son, Lieut. Col. Elliott Roosevelt, Prime Minister and Mrs. Churchill, South African Prime Minister Jan C. Smuts and his son, Capt. Jacobus Smuts, Lord and Lady Mountbatten, American Ambassador John G. Winant and Miss Thompson also were present.

We saw an interesting movie, Noel Coward's story about ships (In Which We Serve—a production glorifying the British navy.) Then we had a chat, after which I took my son up to my room for a long talk."

She said she had been pleased to see Smuts again, and when a reporter asked if she had brought an invitation from President Roosevelt for Smuts to visit the United States, she said·

"He is an old friend of the president and is always very welcome in the United States if he can come"

She was asked if she had been issued a gas mask, in compliance with British regulations

"No," she said, "or if I have, I haven't seen it."

Asked why she was making her trip, Mrs. Roosevelt replied·

"I am interested in every phase that women have accomplished. You have had many more years of war effort than we. Men and women at home have felt that women were not needed. Now they are finding that women are very much needed.

She said she did not believe there would be prohibition in the United States, in the near future.

A correspondent asked if President Roosevelt would come to England.

"I think he would have liked to have come with me," she said, "but I'm afraid this is not just the moment."

Exhibiting a keen interest in their work, Mrs. Roosevelt met the leaders of the British women's war organizations at a luncheon given in her honor by Queen Elizabeth at Buckingham palace.

American doughboys gathered early at the palace gates today, hoping to see Mrs Roosevelt, who was quartered in a first floor suite that had been damaged by German bombings and renovated especially for her.

She rose early and breakfasted alone. Later she conferred with the king and queen on plans for her visit. She met the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose last night and talked with them for some time.

PLANES HUNTING RICKENBACKER

Army, Navy Craft Scouring Pacific Where Ace's Plane Disappeared.

last night that Rickenbacker, who is president of the Eastern Airlines but is serving as confidential aviator advisor to Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson had been aboard a bombing plane of unspecified size but believed to have been a four-motored one, which disappeared while en route from Hawaii to "an island in the south Pacific" He was on a special inspection trip in behalf of Lieut. Gen H. H. Arnold, commanding general of the army air forces.

(Washington reported that it was believed there Rickenbacker was en route to Australia.)

The number of men with Rickenbacker was not known, but was believed to be nine to 11.

Late Wednesday afternoon, the plane reported that it had gasoline for one more hour of flight. Then nothing more was heard and because of that it was feared it had been forced to make a crash landing at sea. The plane's radio could have been made to function if it had made even a rough landing on an island.

Captain Rickenbacker flirted with death most of his life. He was an automobile racing hero in the early days of the motor car, a flying ace who took on seven German planes at one time by himself in the World war, an automobile manufacturer and head of Eastern Airlines.

His narrowest escape from death was in the crash of one of his own company's planes near Atlanta, Ga., on Feb. 27, 1941.

Eight persons were killed, he suffered a broken hip and numerous other fractures, and lay pinned in the wreckage for hours before rescuers arrived

Rickenbacker was born in Columbus, O.

He was awarded the Croix de Guerre, French Legion of Honor medal and the Congressional Medal of Honor for his attack upon seven German planes—five fighters and two bombers in the first World war. He shot down one bomber and one fighter, and the rest fled.

Thrilling Messages and Pictures

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1942.

Drive carefully tomorrow—or possibly you have decided to leave the car in the garage.

And just to think—even back in the horse-and-buggy days people complained about "high taxes."

War brings strange changes, and it was not until recently that a huge pile of scrap seemed beautiful.

Make Tire Theft Federal Offense

NOW that the federal government has stepped in to tell motorists what they may and may not do with their cars, it seems no more than right that theft of tires should be made a federal offense, with punishment equal to that prescribed for other acts of sabotage.

With ownership limited to five tires per car, the government assumes at least a moral obligation to protect motorists against theft of one or more of the permitted number of tires.

Within a short time a large majority of privately owned automobiles will be devoted to necessary transportation of workers to and from jobs associated with the national war effort and loss of tires will be much more than a temporary inconvenience.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation recently filed a complaint against an Iowa business man accused of dumping a dozen usable tires in the Des Moines river. He was charged with sabotage of wartime necessities. Theft of tires, under present conditions, will impress many as being an equally serious offense, and a law to that effect, if passed by congress, might be made quickly effective in cutting down tire thefts, both by amateurs and racketeering rings which have developed a market for stolen tires.

Time To Enforce Liquor Laws

WHEN time is given for analysis of causes leading to revival of the prohibition issue there's strong likelihood that the starting point will be found in failure of government to redeem promises made when the present federal administration took the initiative in repealing national prohibition.

It was then plainly stated, and put forward as national policy, that there would be "no return of the saloon"—the word "saloon," it will be remembered, having been the term commonly used to designate an extreme low in conduct of the retail liquor business.

But it is also recalled that in the later years of the pre-prohibition period regulation of saloons, with care in issuing licenses and a fair degree of local law enforcement, placed saloons on a relatively high plane—with patronage by minors and women not tolerated.

What came about after the repeal of prohibition was not a "return of the saloon" but a motley mixture of urban and rural places of all sorts, licensed for various amounts to sell intoxicants of different kinds, and, in some instances, to attract patronage by entertainment, music, dancing, and the like.

Ohio, which before the repeal of prohibition, had voted by large majority against such a relatively minor matter as legalizing the sale of beer, had immediately foisted upon it one of the most grotesque "liquor control" acts of any of the states, including little regard for the type of persons to whom retail liquor-vending licenses were issued.

With authority centered in Columbus, enforcement responsibility has also been shifted to the state, with local law enforcement agencies inclined to maintain a "hands off" attitude—as in recent cases of sales to minors and non-enforcement of Mansfield's closing ordinance.

Instead of pressing for return of prohibition it would appear that efforts to establish and maintain reasonable bounds for continued legalized operation of the liquor business is the more urgent immediate need.

And this seems possible of accomplishment if there is sufficient expression of favorable public sentiment to local and state officials—rather than that they hear only from those selfishly interested in the "wide open" policy that has become operative here.

Hoarders Caused Coffee 'Shortage'

RELIABLE authorities are now being quoted to the effect that there is no ACTUAL coffee shortage in the United States—and not likely to be.

The extra run on coffee stocks by hoarders has brought on a packaging and distribution maladjustment that can—and will—be speedily corrected, it is promised.

While surplus coffee is losing flavor and aroma on the hide-away shelves of hoarders, other people are compelled to shop around to find enough to meet reasonable family needs—and are sometimes required to pay a penalty price for a fraction of a pound of an unknown brand.

Word from New York is to the effect that "the nation's warehouses are bulging with unground and unroasted coffee" and that plenty of fresh coffee will be available while hoarded supplies spoil.

Sensible procedure, for the next week or two, would be to confine purchases of coffee to minimum requirements, using all on hand before buying more, and disposing of any unspoiled surplus as quickly as possible.

Paper Cups Ward Off Disease

SANITATION plays an important part in sustaining the vigorous health necessary to winning a war and it is interesting to note that the humble little paper cup is doing its part. It's already "in there fighting" by millions, and the industry is running at capacity to fill the growing demand.

It may seem the height of luxury to supply the army and navy with these handy little drinking cups. But it isn't as a luxury, or as a concession to daintiness, that individual drinking cups are provided. It's a matter of human life, of military safety and of winning the war. Some experts think that terrible influenza epidemic in the last war might have been prevented, or greatly lessened, if the fighting men had been supplied with individual drinking cups.

It will pay civilians, too, to be careful about such matters. Hygiene is as important as any other branch of defense.

Those three-foot pygmies just discovered in the Owen Stanley mountains of New Guinea have kept pretty much to themselves—probably thinking that they are superior people.

There are different kinds of "horse sense"—there's the balky horse, for instance.

Dry Crusade Gaining Proportions

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Looking at the situation coldly, there is no doubt that the Drys are making gains. Since January, 1941, local units gained by the Drys, in excess of those moving from dry to wet, total a dry net gain of 657,797 in population.

This may not seem important when we consider that the total population of the United States is now estimated at 134,000,000, but that is no reason to laugh this dry gain off. It was by such gains, slowly but surely made and always exceeding wet gains, that we approached national prohibition before.

It may be remembered that it was after we entered the last war that the pushover for the drys came. In fact there was a lot of talk, afterwards, about the resentment of our soldiers overseas that this had been put over without their having a voice in it.

Last time we had only 2,000,000 men overseas by the end of the war. The total army then was 4,000,000, half of the men never getting overseas. This time the program calls for 7,500,000 men in the army. You can write your own ticket about how many of them will be overseas when the next armistice comes.

BUT this is only part of the picture. The navy this time is taking so many more men than last, due to the character of the fighting, the importance of small patrol boats, torpedo boats, corvettes, naval aviation, etc., that there is really no way to estimate, now, how many men of the navy will be away from convenient polling places by the time the war is over.

The Wets figure, rightly or wrongly, that seven out of every ten men are vigorously wet in political sentiment. The Drys admit that they have more strength among the women than among the men. So that absence with the armed forces of so many men would seem to be a rather potent aid to the dry crusade now getting under way.

As before, the dry move stems from the evangelical churches. It is alleged that ten million dollars have already poured into collection baskets in these churches to fight the demon rum. And, in view of past performances, it would be wishful thinking on the part of the wets to assume that the evils of prohibition, so richly experienced in this country from 1920 until after the 1932 election, would prevent the dry move from getting anywhere.

Many of the convictions of the Wets in this situation seem based on faulty premises. For instance, they are fond of saying that surely with a war raging, and manpower short, this country is not going to employ a huge force of armed men to enforce prohibition, with weapons and ammunition badly needed for the war effort.

That was not the way it worked last time, and history has a way of repeating itself. What happened DURING the war last time was that prohibition was put over—entrenched in the constitution. It was not until AFTER the war, when soldiers and sailors were being returned to civilian life, when arms and ammunition were a drug on the market, that there came the gun battles, the gang shootings, and the vigorous use of the coast guard to enforce prohibition.

The Drys will not worry about armed enforcement until they will have the excuse of providing jobs! What they want DURING the war is to get the law on the books again—in the constitution if possible.

And while this writer believes that this would be another national tragedy, it is by no means certain that the Drys will fail.

'Of Thee I Sing'

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

(To a lonesome lad somewhere in England, Libya, Australia, Greenland or Egypt.)

HOT, blue shadows spilled across the golden grass. Flaring, blue-green shadows trailing like a peacock's tail against the bronzed pine and live oak, silvery olives, the iron symmetry of old black cypresses.

Rising from the meadow, a hillside as deeply furred as a coyote's pelt—fawn-colored, russet and rose. Between them, the winding, silvery reach of poplar trunks, sequined with twinkling gilded leaves, dissolving into the endless, sapphire glaze of the Sierra sky. And everywhere that musty breath of mountain harvest.

Harvest of wild earth and harrowed garden. Mounds of squash, turnip, carrot and beet, ready for the root cellar. Plump, dusty, salmon pink potatoes. Rows of winter cabbage, quickening into emerald globes. Trailing festoons of beans. Burnished piles of pumpkins. Heavy, fragrant branches of apples—coral, crimson, jade and scarlet—with the bees humming beneath them in the passed bloom of tar weed and clover.

Over the rock walls, webs of tame and wild berries, blazing like a ground fire. Shimmering everywhere a veil of weeds, incredibly delicate, iridescent, fragile as butterfly wings. Winding through it all, the ranch road, rusty rose. And then, across the rise, the long lines of grapes.

Next week the grapes will be gathered. Now they glow, acre upon acre of abundant harvest . . . twisted, pewter trunk . . . coppery leaf . . . purple and jade, garnet, dusty blue and aquamarine fruit. Jewelled clusters spilling their fragrance. Presently their vats will make the high, mountain air heady with their ferment. And the men will gather, laughing, for a fiesta after the hot, long day. But even now one's head sways, grows drowsy with their perfume.

Everything is fragrant . . . the pinkish dust along the road . . . the old fence poles beaded with woodpecker acorns . . . the withered corn stalks and garlands of wild ivy . . . the heaped riot of zinnias, French marigolds, petunias, chrysanthemums, dahlias and sunflowers in the flower patch . . . the rosemary, basilica, sage, thyme and bay in the kitchen corner.

Everything is steeped in fragrance. For this is California fall and no rain has fallen for six months. Yet each hour has seen the slow and secret distillation of petal and pollen, seed, bark, berry, gum and withered leaf. Now it all is spread on earth and trees, the poignant essence of the year, waiting for the first rain to quicken it to life.

But there is no rain today only a warm, ruddy light, thick as honey. Everywhere this light spreads, still and deep as an amber pool, over the shack roofs of the log cabins, over the big red barn, over the miles of forest. Nothing stirs in it. Even the cattle, moving home heavily from the lower lane, seem drowned in it. The blue jay's harsh squall skims it, then is gone. A sleepy rabbit scuttles through the alfalfa field. The sky whitens.

Then, suddenly, where there was gold, there is violet dusk. And where there was the gypsy sweetness of wild honey, there comes the smell of beans and coffee, bacon and corn bread. The supper smoke wavers in a thin, straight line toward the first star. The men come slowly trooping toward the cook house, their hair freshly slicked above faded blue shirts. The old owl hoots from its nest by the creek. A fox barks somewhere.

Why do I tell you of all this? Because this is home. This is America, the land of which we sing. This is the freedom for which we arm ourselves . . . the peace for which we pray . . . toward which each homesick heart turns yearning back, then fights more fiercely.

God grant we win!

Timely Editorial

Better Birthdays Are Here.

Of all the sacrifices in this war, the one which will undoubtedly incite the least bloodshed and rioting in the streets is the ban on singing telegrams. Even Senator Taft will have a hard time detecting any consequent tottering of the foundations of the Republic.

If there were anyone in the world more embarrassed than the householder called to the door at 9:50 p. m. to listen to a warbled birthday greeting, it could only have been the unhappy youth who did the warbling.

With the singing telegrams went those reduced rate madeup messages, of which you picked out one for any occasion, from a silver wedding anniversary to a friend's falling down and breaking his leg. They won't be any great loss, either.—Chicago Sun.

Taxes Approach 'Maximum Load', Congress Speeds 'Teen-Age Draft

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

SENATOR WALTER F. GEORGE of Georgia finished his current assignment as chairman of the senate finance committee, saw the biggest tax bill in U. S. history head toward the president for his signature, and then faced reporters.

"Of course," said the senator, "we are going to have to go into the question of compulsory savings in financing the war. It may be that Mr. Morgenthau will bring back from London some ideas. . . . "

Thus with the completion of a measure that will collect from Americans $26,000,000,000 of their estimated $120,000,000,000 income for 1943, the administration prepared to dig even deeper.

But there were indications that a congress which had run counter to political precedent by handing up a whopping tax increase two weeks before election, would take no more revenue action until the first of the year, at least. Senator George reiterated his belief that the present bill approached the maximum in the tax load that can be imposed.

Congress was willing, therefore, to mark time until Morganthau returned from his mission to London—purpose undisclosed—and let him offer a proposal for extracting the $6,000,000,000 more he says will be needed.

Youth Draft.

Congress showed a neat start in the race with the draft bill to reduce the age from 20 to 18. The house slapped the bill through as requested by the president and draft and military officials, doing its "disagreeable but necessary duty" by 346 to 16 votes.

The senate stumbled over the dry bloc going into the turn and the race with the war became a steeplechase.

Firm footing was quickly regained, however, and the bill moved toward enactment.

At the other end of the manpower problem, Commissioner Paul V. McNutt said he would give to the president within two weeks a bill proposing national service. At the same time, the president said plans were under way for the release from the army of some men 35 and over, so they might work in war industries. To this, the army appeared to demur, indicated such a plan would not be general practice.

I am confident that the destruction we shall dish out hereafter will be overwhelming and will contribute greatly to victory."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The Bowery is beginning to take on airs. The street's merchants are pointing with pride to sidewalks unlittered with shapeless forms of unconscious drunks. You can walk five or six blocks without having to step over a body.

Most obvious reason is the war. The able-bodied men who made the Bowery their hangout have been drafted. Another reason is a quiet and unspectacular police cleanup. For two years, plain-clothesmen have been plaguing the Bowery bums, loading them into the pie-wagon and hauling them away to sit out five days, ten days, for vagrancy. The bums took the hint and began moving out.

Now about all that you can see, in the famous dozen short blocks between Chatham Square and Houston (pronounced Howston) street, are the dregs, the ghosts mortal, the smokies, the cripples, the men who for lack of audience talk to themselves.

WE STOPPED at a flophouse on Bowery and Broome streets to read a sign advertising beds at 20 cents, room and shower at 25, other rooms at 25 and 30. The higher priced rooms have windows. And then we went on to the Salvation Army Memorial Hotel, at 225 Bowery, a famous institution in charge of Envoy S. Epstein, a dark, solidly built, bespectacled, practical working Christian.

"Yes, the streeet is losing its characters," the envoy said. We're at only 45 per cent of capacity for paying guests. The relief load is down because of war jobs, but of course quite a few men have gone into the army. We've lost 15 from the hotel staff.

"What we have left as lodgers is the residue, from the public's standpoint, or the real socially handicapped. The employables are gone. It used to be that the drunks were on the sidewalk in front of our place like herrings in a barrel. Sometimes I couldn't even get to the door. But you don't see that now."

The envoy expressed belief that the government right now is interested only in usable human material, not that which has to be reclaimed. But he thinks there is no reason why some of this "residue" can't be sent to farms where liquor is unavailable, and be made useful.

"Once a man has found he can be useful, he may not return to the Bowery," he said. "We still have our motto—that a man may be down but never out."

A STOCKY, ruddy and tolerant Irish policeman at Canal and Bowery told us more about this new era on the Bowery. "It's all business around here now," he said, smiling a little apologetically. "There's no glamor, no cabarets, nothing to really attract people to this street of forgotten men they've heard about. The merchants are talking about changing the street's name to something else, but it's been the Bowery for a long time. I don't think they'd get away with that."

K.O. for Kadens.

Sergt. Irwin Kadens deserted the army at Camp Grant, Ill., in July to embark on a private civil war of his own. The score attributed to him by police up to the time of his capture while holding up a Chicago currency exchange: One kidnaping, five rapes, 18 robberies, 16 automobile thefts.

Kadens, 32, father of two small daughters, whose wife went to work so he could enlist after 11 years in the national guard, explained his seven-week crime wave: "I was hit by a major at Camp Grant. He struck me with his fist and I fell and my head hit a chair. From then on I had no respect for the army."

Abroad

Laval In Hot Spot.

Berlin had asked for 150,000 French workers in German war industry, but Laval rounded up 17,000 and thus brought around a tempest that early in the week appeared to have taken a half-hundred French lives.

Reports reaching London and Bern told of strikes and rioting against Vichy authorities; of the burning of grain fields and warehouses, of the naturalization, by Vichy, of 500 Gestapo agents so they might have full government authority in driving slave labor from cover.

So, while Fighting French sources speculated on whether harried Laval would defy the Hitler order or take a chance on further disorders at home, Pierre chose the latter course. He went on the radio, urged Frenchmen to join the labor movement voluntarily or face the prospect of conscription by Nov. 1.

In an apparent effort to screen supply movements to Marshal Rommel's forces in Libya, Axis bombers streaked in at Malta, were knocked off like clay pigeons at a trapgun range. By midweek, Malta's air and ground defenses had run their month's total bag to 115 planes, against the loss of 26 for the defenders.

Two Down.

Brazil set the pace for South American nations when it hopped into the war against Germany, brought its military and economic resources into close harmony with the United States and the Allies. Chile, along with Argentina, was on the other end of the see-saw, declining even to break relations with the Axis powers.

Political developments in both countries last week had an international flavor, heartened observers who have hoped for complete solidarity in the continent.

In Brazil, Gen. Pedro Aruelio de Goes Monteiro, chief of staff and one of the nation's three "strong men," took a leave of absence. A power in his country for 12 years, he admired German military methods, although he claimed no admiration for Nazi politics.

In Chile, the entire cabinet resigned in a reported protest against views and expressions of Foreign Minister Ernesto Barros Jarpa, an advocate of continued relations with the Axis. The action gave President Juan Antonio Rios a free hand to determine the complexion of his new cabinet, probably to draw Chile a little further away from European influence.

Eyes on Solomons.

During the midweek lull that followed earlier signs of a new eruption in the Solomons, observers pictured the Japanese grouping its Pacific strength for a full-dress naval battle. In such a battle, a Japanese defeat might hasten by months the process of rolling back the Nipponese; similarly, an American reversal would send U. S. forces back to Australia for another tedious process of building up an offensive.

Population Problem.

Editor News-Journal:

In a rural slum near here is a family of nine children. Father, mother both seem moronic. None of the older children shows initiative. None has ever seen a motion picture. None has ever set foot within this city, not 20 miles distant.

Populationists hardly expect this type to fall below the reproduction line across its birthrate curve. It will hold its own.

The real menace to our nation's future, in a population sense, is not just the falling birthrate. It is the tragic decline within our population mass, of the talented type. While morons reproduce like rodents, leadership type couples often have two, one, even no children.

Is it not time to do some careful planning now?

GRADS RETURN FOR ASHLAND HOMECOMING

Crowning of Queen Highlights Today's Activities; Play And Banquet Tonight.

ASHLAND—Graduates of Ashland college talked over "old times" and prepared for a week-end of activities today as scores of them returned for the annual homecoming program.

The program was to get under way early this afternoon with Miss Margaret Stranahan, homecoming queen, welcoming the former students. The college band made its first appearance of the season during the afternoon.

A demonstration of physical education activities at the college in wartime, including mass drill and feats of physical prowess, was on the schedule for the late afternoon.

There was to be a football game between the freshmen and upperclassmen to determine whether the freshmen must continue to wear their caps.

The evening events begin at 5:30 p. m. when the annual homecoming banquet will be held at the Christian church. Admission to this event will be by reservation only.

The comedy, "Brief Music," to be presented in the McDowell auditorium, will culminate the day's activities. Curtain time for the play, under the direction of Miss Thelma Slack, will be 8:30 p. m.

The final events of homecoming will be the church service on Sunday morning when the A Cappella choir will sing and Dr. E. E. Jacobs will deliver the sermon at the Park Street Brethren church.

to win the war. We pray that Ohio never will be attacked, but that's something we don't know about. Bombers can fly almost around the world now."

Touching briefly on his financial policies in the state administration, he said all of the $40,000,000 deficit inherited from the previous administration had been paid or there was money on hand to pay it and the state had increased its services without adding new taxes.

"While we were doing this we reduced the actual operating expenses of the state government nearly $4,000,000 below that of the preceding administrative."

"You haven't heard of 'hot mix' in the past four years, and that's something I'm proud of. I'm proudest of the fact that you haven't heard of graft or corruption in this administration. We have made mistakes, but we have conducted the state government honestly."

He added that "We are determined to preserve local government in the state in peace or war for it is the foundation of the nation."

He praised farmers for exceeding their crop quotas this year and "growing more with less help than they have ever done before."

He did not mention his Democratic opponent, John McSweeney, either by name or inference, devoting his 30-minute talk to a review of the war picture in the state and the record of his administration.

In an earlier address in the coliseum at the Ashland fairground, Gov. Bricker asserted that more highways have been built during his administration than in the preceding one and that $7,000,000 more has been paid to schools and $600,000 more to the state welfare department.

At Galion he said "In some Ohio towns and cities, taxes on real estate have actually been lowered and in no instance, in the past four years, have Ohio citizens been burdened with additional taxes."

Congressman J. Harry McGregor, Republican candidate for re-election in the 17th district, appeared with the governor in Ashland and Mansfield.

Quoting from his voting record on defense measures before Pearl Harbor, McGregor said he opposed the selective service act because a poll he conducted in the 17th district showed that more than 85 per cent of the people were against it at the time it was passed.

"If administration leaders saw the war coming and knew what was going to happen, why did they keep on sending scrap to Japan until 90 days before Pearl Harbor and why didn't they do something about the rubber and sugar situation?" he asked.

"A certain labor group has refused to give its nod to me, so I asked why. I was told it was because I voted against the Smith bill which prohibits strikes during an emergency. I did vote against it, and I'll continue to oppose strikes during wartime as long as our armed forces need equipment."

John L. Catlett, candidate for re-election to the Ohio general assembly, said he had missed only one vote during his term in the legislature, "a record not approached by any representative from Richland county in recent years."

He said he had supported a pay-as-you-go program in the state which had changed a 40 million dollar deficit to a 20 million dollar surplus.

"The opposition makes much of increased expenditures during this administration, but they don't mention that we voted 13 million dollars additional for old age pensions and have been getting honest dollar-for-dollar value for the briefly were C. L. Shoup candidate money that was spent, he said.

County candidates who spoke for county commissioner; Alden H. Heath, candidate for county auditor, and Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, seeking the common pleas judge's post.

Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer introduced Gov. Bricker and Congressman McGregor. Archie May was chairman of the rally.

Mussolini's New Name for Museum's Lazy Rattlesnake

MASSILLON —(NS)— Massillon museum attendants are considering changing the name of "Hirohito," the timper rattlesnake which they found a month ago, to "Mussolini," because of its inactivity.

According to the best books on the care of rattlesnakes their favorite dish is live mice. "Hirohito" apparently hasn't been reading books lately as all the mice which museum attendants secured him for mealtime have been scampering around his cage free as the air.

One mouse becoming bored with such an uninteresting life—got on "Hirohito's" back and bit him several times. To add insult to injury this same rodent turned up one morning with a new-born litter of six.

The little mice have since disappeared—indicating that perhaps "Hirohito" has at last cast off his indifferent mood.

ALLOYED OIL NEW AID IN MOTOR LIFE

Three-Minute Test Shows How New Lubricant Widens Wartime Use.

There's a new "occupational disease" that's hit just about every auto driver in the country. It's called mile-o-phobia and usually manifests itself in this way:

"You take a quick glance at the "total mileage" recorder of your speedometer, but instead of seeing numbers you see big, black question marks, thus: ??????

Next, you find yourself poring over the advertisements of oil companies and listening intently to radio commercials that tell you how to be extra kind to (and eke extra miles out of) your four-wheeled friend. Your reporter suffers from this strange, new psychosis. And so do you, probably.

It gives me great pleasure to announce, though, that I've found an almost complete cure. Yesterday, I was driving along when a big sign in front of one of our local gasoline stations stepped right out and held up its hand for me to stop. Here's what it said: "Convince yourself in three minutes . . . V. E. P. will make your motor last 50 per cent longer than it would with ordinary oil."

I eased Betsy into that bright, inviting-looking station and assumed my best "I'm-from-Missouri" expression.

First, I was escorted up to the neatest little display gadget you ever saw, complete with sample bottles of motor lubricants and a 10-seconds-per-page book. And I saw—right there before me—what this entirely new kind of motor lubricant actually does when it goes to work inside your car.

For instance, this V. E. P. has triple film strength that protects against motor wear. It has a "magnetic-like" quality that makes it stick to cylinder walls overnight, and so guards against "first-minute" damage to motors. And that's just the beginning. By the time the three minutes were up, I was convinced that this new motor oil would certainly add months of driving to the life of my motor.

Needless to say, I lost no time in rolling Betsy onto that greasing rack, and telling the boys to take over. And now, with V. E. P. in her crankcase, I can step on the throttle without feeling like an executioner.

"Military Bob" for War Worker Urged By Avalon Beauty Salon

Tailored Hair-Do Adapts to All Face Types, Stylist Avers.

Paced by the martial air of the WAACS, WAVES and WAFS, women defense workers and others rapidly are adopting the "military bob" according to Mrs. Mildred Ehrman, proprietor of the Avalon Beauty Salon, 73½ North Main street.

Designed as a practical yet attractive hair-do, the military bob is tailor and trim and smart, whether worn with the service uniform or the chosen apparel of the war plant worker, clerk or business-woman.

"Besides emphasizing a patriotic note," Mrs. Ehrman says, "This war-inspired style is both comfortable and efficient. It is well within the scope of the slogan, "Dress your part from head to foot.'"

Maintaining a highly trained staff of hair stylists, the Avalon Beauty Salon features a free consultation service on the use of vitamans to stave off greying tresses and as beauty aids in general. A complete stock of vitamins is carried, including those designed to preserve vision and teeth.

Shampoos, scalp treatments, manicures, facials, permanents—in fact every service in the cosmetology category—are offered at the Avalon.

"Time is no object," Mrs. Ehrman declares, "and a satisfied patron is the first aim of the skilled operator." Speaking from years of experience, Mrs. Ehrman knows well the art of developing and maintaining milady's beauty.

Keeping abreast of all new methods, and quick to take advantage of newly approved styles and treatments, Mrs. Ehrman and her staff enjoy a steadily increasing patronage.

Modern in design, comfortable as well as attractive, the Avalon Salon is restful as well as helpful to a growing clientele.

The accompanying photograph shows Mrs. Mildred Ehrman, proprietor of the Avalon Beauty Salon, conferring with an operator in the elaborate reception room of the salon, on the new "Military Bob" and other beauty salon features.

When the Mansfield Garden Study club met yesterday at the home of Mrs. R. K. Clark, 11 members and two guests were present. Mrs. Ralph Carroll, and Mrs. Willis Rohrer of Shelby were guests. Mrs. George Hout welcomed Mrs. Gilmore Hiett as a new member of the club, and gave a short talk on conservation.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Rohrer, was introduced by Mrs. Clark. The subject of her paper was "Herbs as Used In 1803," and was intensely interesting. The club presented Mrs. Hiett and Mrs. Rohrer with corsages. Members had on display 18 different varieties of chrysanthemums which they had grown in their gardens.

One arrangement was particularly beautiful because of the very handsome Chinese bowl in which the flowers had been placed. A dessert luncheon was served at a table decorated in autumn flowers. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Hout on Sturges avenue on Nov. 12.

Molded Salad Of Cottage Cheese Used

By BETSY NEWMAN

An economical and satisfying main dish for a luncheon or buffet supper is a molded cottage cheese salad. You can serve cold cuts of meat with it, as I'm suggesting in the menu.

Today's Menu.

Cold Cuts of Meat
Molded Cheese Salad
Celery and Carrot Curls
Pickles or Olives
Hot Biscuits or Rolls
Honey Sour Cream Pie Coffee
Salted Nuts

Molded Cheese Salad.

1½ lbs. cottage cheese
1 tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. onion or onion juice
1 cup thin cream or rich milk
½ cup cold water
2 Tbsps plain, unflavored gelatin
1½ cups boiling water
1 tsp. vinegar or lemon juice.

Force cottage cheese through sieve, add salt, pepper, onion (minced or juice) and vinegar or lemon juice. Mix well and stir in thin cream or milk. Soak gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes, add boiling water and stir until dissolved. Set aside to cool and thicken, then fold into cheese mixture and turn into 4 or 5-ounce paper cups. Put in refrigerator to set. Unmold on platter, surround with cuts of assorted cold meats and celery and carrot curls.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, October 25.

Sunday's horoscope shows a rather negative state of affairs as far as accomplishment is concerned. It is probable that the continuation of yesterday's pursuit of pleasure will continue, with little change of routine or aspirations. Be discreet and conservative and escape difficulty.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves launched in a year in which enjoyment, pleasure seeking, spending of funds and energies are accented rather than any useful endeavor, although there might be some headway and stability in application to work should it be considered.

A child born on this day has some substantial qualities of mind and character and might make fair success if it could resist the lure of enjoyment.

For Monday, October 26.

Monday's astrological forecast is a very interesting one because of its peculiar conflicts and contradictions. The element of the novel, curious and intriguing is accented and might lead to an unusual sort of progress or achievement if directed into constructive channels. Private associations especially of an emotional phase also intrigue.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which the unusual, bizarre, perhaps eccentric and romantic, may be uppermost, and with profit should they be constructively developed. Creative ability may be engineered into high expression of merit rather than eccentricity and extremes.

A child born on this day may have peculiar talents, probably unique and exceptional, and lucrative if properly developed. It may have a fascinating and intriguing personality.

Bible Club Holds Hotel Luncheon On Anniversary

At a luncheon in the Women's Club Friday afternoon 11 members and four guests of the Gleaner's Bible club observed the first anniversary of their founding by Mrs. D. W. Cummins, who was hostess, assisted by the president, Mrs. C. A. Cole.

After a short business meeting conducted by the president, Mrs. Edwin Craig led devotions on the theme, "Faith." Lesson study was given by Mrs. Ralph Peat. On Nov. 13, Mrs. Paul Freer will entertain the group at her home, 560 Coleman road.

Club Hears Talk About Air Raids

The Buena Vista club met with Mr. and Mrs. V. G. Dudley, Crider road on Friday evening. Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Hout assisted. Twenty members and their families were present in addition to three guests. An interesting talk was given by Attorney Harmon on air raids.

There will be an air raid meeting the evening of Oct. 30 at the Bueno Vista school for the Buena Vista district.

Following the business meeting contests were played and prizes won by Mrs. Louise Reed and George Weimer. Refreshments were served at a table appropriately decorated in Halloween appointments. The date of the next meeting to be announced.

Conservation of Apples Is Project

Conservation Chairman, Mrs. H. W. Gibbs, of the Town and Country Garden club called together eight members of the club to pick apples on the Reed Fruit farm west of the city. On Tuesday afternoon 80 bushels were picked and yesterday they gathered 135 bushels.

The frosts are rapidly spoiling apples due to the lack of pickers, so as their conservation project for this month the group is doing its best to preserve a large quantity of apples that would otherwise be damaged beyond use.

HONOR BIRTHDAY.

The home of Mrs. Mary North was the scene of a birthday party Thursday evening honoring Mrs. Lucille Smith. John Poller of Hamilton, Ont., was an out-of-town guest. "Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I laughed at Miss Whitlock's whimsical reference, but as I bade her goodbye, I could not help feeling a certain disloyalty to Carolyn in my mirth, and found myself resenting the nurse's evident doubt of her.

I had cautioned the nurse, not anticipating a relapse on Carolyn's part, but thinking the gangsters might try to get in touch with her. Miss Whitlock, however, meant to keep a close eye on the girl herself, and my reason applauded her.

With a feeling of relief I went downstairs, the problem of Carolyn off my hands for awhile.

"Everything set, also jake?" Dicky asked, as I came into the room. The three men had arisen, but my father, with a gesture, forestalled my taking the chair Harry Underwood was bringing.

Back to Lansfield.

"She hasn't time to sit down," he said. "I want to get back to the Lansfield as soon as possible, unless—" he turned to me quickly, "you have learned something which will make it necessary for us to remain here."

"Not a thing," I told him. "Ronald is feeling much better, and is soon to see his sister, who is now with Lillian. And Miss Whitlock is waiting to give everybody some hot milk and and a mild sedative before sleeping. So, Harry, if you're anxious to get in the procession, file your application."

"Thanks for the warning," the big man said with a wry grimace. "I'll make my own nightcap, if I may."

Sleep Next In Order.

"What time do you want us to start for Weirhampton today?" Dicky asked my father.

"Whenever they've had their sleep out," my father said. "It would be all right if you didn't go until tomorrow, but I'd like to get Carolyn back there as soon as possible. Harry, suppose you ask Miss Whitlock to give us a ring when Carolyn wakens, then we can plan a schedule."

"Any time suits me," Dicky explained.

"How about letting you sleep until I call you?" Harry said. "You're what they call a 'quick change,' and I never knew you to have enough sleep."

"Too true, my faithful friend," Dicky rejoined, then shot a furtive glance at my father's face.

"Good night, old boy," he said to Harry, then led me to the door, and my father followed us out.

Knock Not Answered.

We made good time back to the Lansfield, and on the way I gave my father what Dicky would term a 'round by round" description of my interviews with Lillian and with Ronald.

"I think we can rest easily about Carolyn for awhile," my father said, "but we'll keep several eyes on here."

At the Lansfield we went directly to my balcony suite, where Dicky rapped loudly on the door.

There was no response, and after an instant he knocked again. When still no answer came my father spoke with emphasis.

"I don't like this," he said. "Let's go around to that other suite, where Steve Redfield's injuries are being tended."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

AIM AT YOUR TARGET

One great difference between match point duplicate and rubber bridge comes when you study the dummy and figure out what contract other players may have reached at other tables. You then play your contract in such a way as to try to beat the score you reckon they may make. In rubber bridge that would be suicidal if by so doing you risk a game for the sake of a single extra trick. But it is vital to good duplicate.

	♠ 9 5 ♥ Q J 7 3 2 ♦ A K 9 8 5 ♣ 4
♠ K J 8 7 2 ♥ 10 9 6 ♦ 6 3 ♣ J 7 3	N W E S	♠ 10 6 4 3 ♥ A 8 ♦ Q 10 7 ♣ K 9 6 5
	♠ A Q ♥ K 5 4 ♦ J 4 2 ♣ A Q 10 8 2

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣
Pass	2 ♦	Pass	3 NT
Pass	4 ♦	Pass	4 ♥

After the spade, 3 was led. North decided East was quite sure not to have the spade K, or else he would have led a heart against what sounded like cross-suit bidding, with each partner bidding a different side suit. With the spade K placed in the West then, he decided the other missing K was more likely to be with East, so that the club finesse probably would win and the spade one lose.

More important, he decided that plenty of declarers would be in 3-No Trumps, with a spade lead coming up to South. If so, two spade tricks, four hearts, two diamonds and two clubs would make ten at No Trumps. To beat that, he would have to score 5-Hearts.

So he refused the spade finesse on the opening trick, playing the A, led over to his diamond A and finessed the club Q. When that held, he discarded his own last spade on the club A. Then he had to give up a trick in hearts and one in diamonds, but made his five-odd okeh to gain a tie at top score with one other declarer who did likewise.

If the game had been total point play, instead of match point, or had been rubber bridge, that method would have been definitely bad bridge, as it risked the contract. If the club finesse had failed, he would have lost a trick in each suit, beating him.

Your Week-End Lesson.

What type of bridge player is it usually who works just as hard at making a contract of 1-No Trump in a rubber game, when there is no part-score, as when in a game or slam? Are you that kind?

The Post Office Department, In Co-operation With the War and Navy Departments Have Outlined the Following Instructions For the Mailing of Christmas Parcels to Members of Our Armed Forces Serving Outside the Continental United States. Their Observance Will Insure That Such Parcels Reach the Addressees On Time and In Good Condition.

(For the Purpose of These Instructions Alaska Is Included In the Term "Outside the Continental U. S.")

TIME OF MAILING:
Christmas parcels and Christmas cards should be mailed during the period beginning October 1 and ending November 1, 1942, the earlier the better. Gift parcels should be marked Christmas parcels, as a special effort will be made to effect delivery of all Christmas parcels mailed during this time.

SIZE AND WEIGHT:
In view of the urgent need for shipping space to transport materials directly essential to the war effort, Christmas parcels shall not exceed the present limits of 11 pounds in weight or 18 inches in length, or 42 inches in length and girth combined. The public is urged by the War and Navy Departments to co-operate by voluntarily restricting the size of Christmas parcels to that of an ordinary shoe box, and the weight to six pounds. These departments have also pointed out that members of the armed forces are amply supplied with food and clothing, and the public is urged not to include such matter in gift parcels. NOT MORE THAN ONE CHRISTMAS PARCEL SHALL BE ACCEPTED FOR MAILING IN ANY ONE WEEK WHEN SENT BY OR ON BEHALF OF THE SAME PERSON OR CONCERN TO OR FOR THE SAME ADDRESSEE.

PREPARATION:
Owing to the great distance this mail must be transported and the handling and any storage it must undergo, it is absolutely necessary that all aricles be packed in substantial boxes or containers, and be covered with wrappers of sufficient strength, not only to resist pressure of other mail in the same sack, but to withstand the weight of other sacks of mail, which in the long transit may be piled thereon. Furthermore, as each parcel is subject to censorship, delay in handling may be minimized by securing the covering of the parcel so as to permit ready inspection of the contents. The contents of combination packages should be tightly packed, in order that the several articles may not be loosened in transit, damaging the contents of the parcel itself, or to the covering of the parcel. Christmas boxes should be inclosed in substantial containers. Candies in thin pasteboard boxes should be enclosed in wood, metal or corrugated pasteboard. Sealed packages of candy, cigars, tobacco and toilet articles in simplest mercantile form may be enclosed in parcels without affecting the parcel-post classification of such packages. Sharp-pointed or sharp-edged instruments, such as razors, knives, etc., must have their points or edges protected so they cannot cut through their coverings and damage other mail, or injure postal employees.

PERISHABLE MATTER:
No perishable matter should be included in any parcel.

PROHIBITED ARTICLES:
Intoxicants, inflammable materials (including matches of all kinds and lighter fluids), and poisons, or compositions which may kill or injure another, or damage the mails, are unmailable.

ADDRESSING PARCELS:
Addresses must be legible. Parcels addressed to overseas personnel should show, in addition to name and address of sender, the name, rank or rating, serial number, branch of service or ship, and post office through which parcels are to be routed.

POSTAGE:
Postage must be fully prepaid. Consult this postoffice for rates. Stickers or labels resembling postage stamps are not permissible on the outside of parcels.

PERMISSIBLE ADDITIONS:
In addition to the name and address of the sender, which is required, inscriptions such as "Merry Christmas," "Please Do Not Open Until Christmas" and the like, may be placed on the covering of the parcel in such a manner as not to interfere with the address, or on a card inclosed therewith. Books may bear simple dedicatory inscriptions not in the nature of personal correspondence.

INSURANCE AND REGISTRY SERVICES:

Fighting Tygers Hold Massillon to 32 to 0 Victory

Sport Podge by REX HESS

The postman rings twice times twice today so let's to the mail.

From Joe Lesch, former president of this and that including city softball and basketball in Mansfield, comes a letter postmarked Perrin Field, Sherman, Tex., proudly proclaiming:

Dear Rex—Well, my good man, I'm over the first big hump. Finished up primary training and have now been sent on to basic training school back out in Texas.

Sure do fly real airplanes here and no fooling. All the power in the world and really fun to fly. Sure is one devil of a lot to learn, however. There are only 87 instruments in the cockpit that we must know completely by heart.

Mansfield must be going down hill fast. With all the fellows in the army, you probably won't have any sports to write at all pretty soon. But then you can always bend your elbow over a slug of ginger ale or something.

So, Rex, take it easy, and keep that sports page going. Better get those Tygers "on the ball." Snyder sure is having a tough season.

Joe Lesch

Don't you ever fear, Joe. No matter what else happens, this season is already a success. Mansfield 6, Springfield 0. How we gloat over that one.

* * *

And from Joe Atton comes a giant postcard, four times the usual size, showing an army bomber flying over San Antonio, Texas. Says Atton:

Dear Rex—I suppose the topic at home is what's the matter with the Tygers? I'd like to know myself. Drop me a line and let me know how the sport situation is on the home front.

I'm an upper classman now, and boy, we upper classmen sure put the lower classmen through their paces. It's a Rough and Rugged Road, and how! We really keep them "on the ball."

Sincerely, Joe.

And from Ed Zediker, Mansfield City News grid lineman last fall, comes this one.

Hi Rex: Has anybody got a semi-pro football team there yet I sure miss playing this year. If you get a chance will you give me Earl McMullen's address?

The navy life is swell so far. Will see you soon. Ed

Earl McMullen, coach of the City News team, is back in town after a summer in Pennsylvania, and already is answering Ed's card.

And also in the mail comes a handout from John Carroll university reporting that Joe Romano of Mansfield and Jack Dorsey of Youngstown played a stellar role a week ago in Carroll's 6-6 tie with Toledo university.

"It was their job," says the Carroll H. O., "to hurry the Rockets' Emlen Tunnell and Dick Houston, passing and running stars, which they did so successfully that Toledo's net gain on running was zero, while passes completed totaled five out of 23."

GEORGIA TECH GOES AFTER NAVY SCALP

ANNAPOLIS, Md—(INS)—Undefeated Georgia Tech will attempt to add the Navy's scalp today in a gridiron clash that is expected to draw a "full house" to the Thompson stadium, where the 1942 Army-Navy game will be played by presidential order.

The Engineers speed team deluxe that bowled over Notre Dame, 13 to 6, and slapped Auburn, 15 to 0, will be hurled at the Middies. How well the Tars can repulse the assaults will be determined on the amount of rebound stored up by the Navy after last Saturday's defeat of Yale by the future admirals.

Buckeyes Face Stiff Grid Test

Fekete and Graham Match Scoring Prowess.

EVANSTON, Ill. —(AP)— Ohio State, the nation's No. 1 football team faced one of its stiffest tests of the season today—Northwestern's victory-starved Wildcats. A crowd of 40,000 was expected.

The game pitted the western conference's leading ground gainer and scorer—Gene Fekete, Ohio State's sensational sophomore fullback—against the conference's top passer, Atto Graham.

* * *

The contest also had a strong revenge motif. Last year's 14 to 7 defeat by Northwestern mars the two-year coaching record of Paul Brown.

"This is the game we've waited for a whole year," the Buckeye mentor said.

Today's clash was the 21st between the two clubs and the Buckeyes were favorites to mark up their fifth straight win. Northwestern, with its only victory a field goal decision over Texas, has dropped two consecutive conference engagements, to Purdue and Michigan.

Brown was not optimistic, although Halfback Paul Sarringhaus was sufficiently recovered from an ankle injury to be announced as a probable starter.

"It wouldn't surprise me a bit if Northwestern beat us," Brown said. "We haven't been sufficiently well tested to be rated the No. 1 team of the country."

Sports writers have selected the Buckeyes as the nation's top eleven for two successive weeks in the Associated Press poll.

Northwestern Coach Lynn Waldorf decided to try two new sophomores in his backfield against the Bucks, Lynne McNutt replacing Dud Kean at quarterback and Nick Vodick replacing Don Buflmire at right half

Probable lineups:

TRYING AFTERNOON AWAITS COLUMBIA

PHILADELPHIA — (INS) — Another wearing, and trying afternoon awaits the Columbia football Lions on Franklin field today.

In their selection of Ivy league opponents the Lions seem to have picked the poison variety exclusively. This afternoon it is Pennsylvania, possibly stronger than either of the other two.

Joe Romano Proves Star

Mansfield Boy Blocks Punt, Scores Touchdown.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— A pair of John Carroll freshmen caught the eye today of Ohio football fans ready to dine on such gridiron fare as the Ohio State-Northwestern clash at Evanston, Ill., and 15 other contests involving Ohio college teams.

John Carroll defeated Case in Cleveland 12 to 0 last night with frosh players making both touchdowns to snap Case's three-game victory string this season. Fullback Julius Sukys climaxed a 76-yard drive by ramming over from the three-yard line, and End Joe Romano got Carroll's other touchdown by blocking a punt, scooping it up on the Case 11 and racing across the goal line.

* * *

Another undefeated, untied record went on the rocks at Ecorse, Mich., as Otterbein lost, 14-0, to Grosse Ile Naval air base.

At Kenton, Ohio Northern smothered Bluffton college 62 to 6 on nine touchdowns, six conversions and a safety, with Halfback Collins Stackhouse accounting for 15 points. Bluffton's Hugus scored after recovery of a blocked punt on Northern's two-yard line.

Today's principal interest focused on Ohio State's attempt to avenge last year's 14-7 defeat here by Northwestern and remain atop the Western conference standings.

Cincinnati faced the prospect of seeing its four-game winning streak snapped by Georgia which brings Frankie Sinkwich, All-American last year and one of this year's leading ball carriers, to the Ohio river city

Wilberforce was favored to keep its undefeated record intact against Lincoln university from Chester, Pa.

* * *

Marietta, which cancelled its entire schedule previously, returns to the gridiron wars in a night tilt with Rio Grande in Wellston. Other night games send Wright-Patterson Field to Defiance and Denison to Hamilton for a clash with the Miami Naval radio unit.

* * *

Other games include Findlay at Capital, Mount Union at Heidelberg, Muskingum at Wooster, and Baldwin Wallace at Wittenberg, all Ohio conference contests; Miami at Bowling Green, Kenyon at Hiram, Ohio Wesleyan at Ohio university, Oberlin at Swarthmore, Marshall at Toledo, Western Reserve at Kent State, and Xavier at Dayton.

Illini Take on Notre Dame Irish

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. —(INS)— An amazing University of Illinois eleven that toppled Minnesota and then defeated a strong Iowa team faced a stern task today in taking the field against Notre Dame.

The manner in which the Illini rolled up 145 points while holding South Dakota, Butler, Minnesota and Iowa to a total of 20 has already heralded Coach Ray Eliot's eleven one of the school's greatest.

* * *

The game took on added importance as the result of Notre Dame's 28-to-0 defeat over the Iowa Seahawks last Saturday, the first defeat suffered by Lt. Col. Bernie Bierman's Sailors.

* * *

Angelo Bertelli, Notre Dame's passing sensation, was the target of the Illini defense. The Illinois defense is built around Dick Good, Tony Butkovich and Don Griffin.

N. C. Pre-Flight Swamps Temple

PHILADELPHIA — (INS) — Five touchdowns and four extra points today gave only a partial indication of the North Carolina Pre-Flighters' superiority over a hapless Temple university eleven at the OWL' Stadium last night.

* * *

Pushing over two tallies in the first quarter, the aviation cadets constantly knocked at Temple's goal line to hand the Owls their worst home-soil defeat, 34-0. Some 20,000 fans were on hand to watch the slaughter.

* * *

Jim Crowley's forces were paced by Len Eshmont, former Fordham back, who scored on a 13-yard sweep in the first quarter and intercepted a pass and ran 32 yards for the second six-pointer. Walt Zirinsky, of Lafayette, tallied once and converted three times.

BOX SEATS SOLD

SOUTH BEND, Ind. —(AP)— All box seats for the Notre Dame-Navy football game at Cleveland, Oct. 31, have been sold, said Robert M. Cahill, Notre Dame ticket manager.

Youngster Sees Massillon Game From Cot

"Gee, it was swell" was the way 13-year-old Melvin Watson described last night's Mansfield-Massillon game. Melvin saw the game from an ambulance cot placed along the sidelines. He's been an invalid for four years because of a hip ailment. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Watson, 197 Gerke avenue.

Grid Leaders Established

But Football Upsets Persist In War Season.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK —(INS)— The 1942 football season reached the halfway point today, with sectional leaders fairly well established all along the line, with a handful of unbeaten and untied major elevens, and with all of them wishing they could be confident of maintaining what sometimes is known as the status quo. Many of then must have given some thought to the future beyond this year, too. What does the coming year hold for the gridirons?

One guess is as good as another on that, just as there must be a wide conflict in opinion a thing so simply as who will win any given game this season. Because of the war, this has been a football season that, when it is all over, the observers can point to as the one in which there was an utter minimum of that thing called form. Upsets we've had scores of them. There will be more before the races all have been run. That's the kind of season we're having.

Up to whistle time today in various stadiums—or stadia, Mr. Webster—there were a few dozen unbeaten untied teams, a score or so that fitted into the upper brackets in this respect and these among the standouts which have managed to get through all competition so far without bogging down even to the extent of a deadlock:

Alabama, Army, Boston college, Brown, Detroit, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Illinois, Ohio State, Santa Clara, Syracuse, Tulsa and Texas Christian. All that could be drastically changed by dusk today, with further depletions in those ranks.

After what hit those Iowa Seahawks last week, anything can happen if you'll just hold your hat and wait long enough.

Getting away from the pigskin and moving into the pughstic business, New York will see on next Friday night its first big time prize fight—if it's big time—in several weeks. Lee Savold, the Des Moines thumper, will take on Tami Mauriello, local pride and joy, in a 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

The winner is supposed to get Jimmy Bivins who this week won a decision over Bob Pastor at Cleveland. That ultimate winner will get a long rest waiting for some one to show up for a fight. There aren't many heavyweights around now.

Savold or Mauriello—or Bivins—will emerge as the best of a skimpy lot. Savold has had nine fights this year. In six he scored knockouts, he won two on points and he blew the other one to Tony Musto, but later reversed that decision.

Mauriello, meantime, has engaged 11 heavyweight opponents since the new year, has belted out eight, scored one decision victory, lost one and held Pastor to a draw. Savold should be the favorite on experience.

BROWN DEPENDS ON BOB MARGARITA

PRINCETON, N. J. — (INS) — A hungry Brown Bear's chances of feeding on Princeton Tiger meat for the first time since 1931 depended pretty much this afternoon on the physical condition of Bob Margarita, the country's leading ball carrier.

The unbeaten Bears were 6 to 5 favorites as thousands began to converge on Palmer stadium.

DARTMOUTH FAVORED

NEW HAVEN, Conn — (INS) — Rated decided favorites due to superiority both in the air and on the ground, the big green eleven of Dartmouth is expected to add another black chapter to Yale's 1942 football record today before some 20,000 people in the Yale Bowl.

Whirly Picked For Walkaway

Alsab Owners Not Anxious to Race Again.

By JACK MAHON

NEW YORK — (INS) — For the first time in its six year history the famed Pimlico special, an annual fall racing classic which brings together the outstanding thoroughbreds in training, may be a walkover next Wednesday, with only the Calumet farm's money-winning champion, Whirlaway, trotting over the mile and three sixteenths journey to pick up an uncontested prize of $10,000.

* * *

Only Alsab, the Chicago-owned colt who has twice beaten the mighty Calumet Comet, in three tries, can save the race and his owners Mr. and Mrs. Al Sabath are not particularly anxious to send him against Whirly for the fourth time in the Baltimore race.

The decision, which will send the son of Good Goods-Winds Chant either to Pimlico to face Whirly or to Empire City next Saturday to compete in the $25,000 Westchester handicap, over the same distance, will be made tomorrow night by Sarge Swenke, the Sab's trainer, when the weights for the latter event are known.

If Alsab decides to go in the Empire race it will be a cruel break for the Pimlico management for it had dedicated its opening day, featured by the famed special, to army emergency relief. Every penny of the proceeds, except the purse money, will be turned over to the AER but if the special proves only a walk-over the attendance and receipts to the charity will be cut fully fifty per cent.

As you probably know this special is run each fall at Pimlico and all horses who have won in any of some 24 selected races, in all parts of the country, are automatically eligible for the race.

This season's renewal figured to be one of the greatest of the series with Whirly, Alsab and Shut Out all in shape and apparently anxious to meet each other. The latter, however, pulled up lame after having been beaten in the Gallant Fox handicap at Jamaica Wednesday and has been retired for the year. Therein, to coin a cliche, lies the tale of the probable walkover.

You see Shut Out had won $238,972 this year to become its leading money winner. Alsab is just $13,757 short of that in purses and Sabath would like to have his son of Good Goods-Winds Chant not only win the title of horse of the year but also go down in history as its top money-winner.

If Alsab should start in the special he could win only $10,000 but if he should win the Westchester he can pick up a jackpot of about $25,000, which will lift him comfortably over Shut Out's earnings and make him a cinch to become the prize turf banker of 1942.

Crowd of 50,000 Sees Jug Battle

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn—(INS)—A crowd of more than 50,000 was expected today as Minnesota and Michigan squared off for their traditional "Little Brown Jug" football rivalry.

For the first time in years, Michigan rated the favorite's spot over the Gophers who fumbled their way to defeat against the Iowa Seahawks and the University of Illinois.

Today marked the passage of 50 years since Minnesota and Michigan first clashed on the gridiron at Ann Arbor in October, 1892 and the tenth anniversary of the Wolverine's last victory over the Gophers in 1932. On the occasion of Michigan's last win, Fritz Crisler the present Wolverine coach, was mentor of the Gophers.

ARMY MEETS HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass—(INS)—The grim football warriors of West Point stomp into Harvard's stronghold today to add appropriately-named Soldiers field to their trail of conquest. The United States Military Academy, undefeated in three games so far this season, rules a 4 to 1 favorite over hapless Harvard, already beaten three times and tied once.

Visitors Fail to Run Up Score on Mansfield

Crowd of Nearly 9,000 Sees Game At Stadium Field Friday Night

COUNT this as a moral victory for Mansfield high school's fighting Tygers—MASSILLON 32, MANSFIELD 0.

Doped by the "smart money" to lose by 40 points or more, Coach Paul Snyder's green but scrappy Tygers battled every inch of the way and made Mighty Massillon work for each and every one of its five touchdowns last night at Stadium field as a crowd of nearly 9,000 fans looked on, amazed at the new found fighting spirit of the Mansfield team.

Only a week ago Mansfield picked up that fighting spirit in a 6-0 victory over Springfield, in a game which the dopesters expected the Tygers to lose by 40 points after three straight setbacks at the hands of Elyria, Sandusky and Niles.

* * *

And before that game, guesses on the outcome of the Massillon tilt ranged all the way up to 70 points.

Massillon was out to run up the score last night, seeking revenge for the 6-6 tie which marred its undefeated record in 1941, and not until the fifth touchdown was scored late in the game did Coach Elwood Kammer send in his second string subs.

But Mansfield was out to make a respectable showing, and no one in that record crowd last night could say that the final 32 to 0 score was not respectable. Two years ago Mansfield counted a 39-0 defeat by Massillon a moral victory when a lot of "smart money" was lost on 40 points.

Massillon made its yardage in big chunks last night when it did connect, but first downs were Massillon 10 and Mansfield 8, which gives some indication of the battle which the Tygers really put up.

* * *

Not until the closing minutes of the first quarter was Massilon able to push over a touchdown, and that one came like a bolt out of the blue as Keve Bray took a lateral from Chuck Holt and ran wide around end for the first score. Holt bucked the line for the extra point.

Before that Mansfield had been on the offensive in midfield, and Bill Lewis had punted to the Massillon goal line where the ball was brought out to the 20. Bray's jaunt climaxed an 80-yard touchdown march.

Massillon lost a touchdown early in the second period on the same play which brought the Tigers their first marker, with Bray racing 55 yards and across the goal line. Joe Parry, making a desperate effort to catch Bray on the 20-yard line was blocked out by Jasinski and the two boys came up fighting. Both were ejected from the game, and the double foul nullified the play.

* * *

Then Graber got away for 22 yards and a first down on the Mansfield 32. Mansfield was penalized five yards. After one incomplete pass, Graber dropped back for another pass, found his receivers covered, and lit out for the goal line 27 yards away. He made it and Holt kicked the point, making the score 14 to 0 at the half.

* * *

Bill Lewis stopped one threat later in the second quarter by intercepting a Graber pass on the Mansfield 40, and still later Mansfield stopped a Massillon drive on the 33-yard line.

Mansfield held again early in the third period when a punt by Lewis on fourth down was blocked and Massillon took over on the Tyger 20-yard line. Four plays netted the visitors only one yard, and this time Lewis punted out of danger.

A 17-yard punt return by Graber started Massillon on its third touchdown march from the Mansfield 47-yard line. Graber reeled off 33 yards on an end run to the 14, and Bray sliced off tackle for the touchdown. Holt's kick was wide.

Mansfield came back fighting as Zellers returned the next kickoff to his own 42-yard line, and the Tygers' only completed pass, from Schmidt to Burrage was good for eight yards. Zellers made a first down on the Massillon 43, but two plays later Williams recovered a fumble on the Mansfield 46.

Mansfield recovered Gibson's fumble on the 45, but early in the final period Graber intercepted a pass and returned 20 yards to the Mansfield 44. Burrage recovered another fumble by Gibson on the 47, and play was kept in midfield until Bray intercepted a long pass and raced 45 yards to the Mansfield 19.

Bray went around end for 14 yards, and Holt hit the middle for a touchdown. Once more Holt's kick was wide, and it was 26-0.

* * *

A punt that rolled off the side of Lewis' foot and went only nine yards out of bounds on the Massillon 42-yard line started the Tigers on their final scoring drive. Holt and Graber made a first down on the Mansfield 45, and after Bray picked up three yards, Graber heaved a long pass to Willmot for a first down on the Mansfield 9. Power sneaked for six yards, and Bray went around end for the remaining three. And again Holt's kick was wide and it was 32 to 0.

Not until then did the point-hungry Massillons go in for mass substitutions, sending in their second team with only a few minutes remaining in the ball game.

But the Massillon subs also threatened. Recovering a fumble on their own 47-yard line, Massillon picked up three yards on the first play, then Pellegrini heaved a long pass to Gable for a first down on the Mansfield 19. Pellegrini tossed a pass in the flat to Mastriann for 12 yards, and Mastriann bucked for three more.

Mastriann's fumble on the next play was recovered by Mansfield on the two-yard line, and the game was over.

Prexies Taken By Sandusky

Blue Streaks Bring Harding Streak to End.

Marion Harding Presidents, marching toward another North Central Ohio league championship, saw their undefeated record rudely shattered last night when Sandusky's Blue Streaks rolled over the Prexies, 20-0.

Ashland, edged by Marion 14-13 last week, had to stage a comeback in the closing minutes of play to tie Wooster.

And Bucyrus is still seeking its first victory of the season after a 6-6 deadlock with Crestline. These were the only North Central Ohio league teams in action last night. Shelby meets Canton Lincoln today.

Fredericktown and the great Ollie Cline continued their victory parade yesterday with a 34-0 win over Ohio State School for the Deaf.

Bellville won the Class B championship of Richland county with a 7-0 victory over Butler.

Mansfield's hopes for a good showing against Canton McKinley in the Tyger's only remaining road trip brightened last night when the Bulldogs were forced to the limit to eke out a 12-7 win over Alliance.

Elyria was trounced 27-0 by Cleveland Shaw high school, and Akron West played a scoreless tie with Akron Central.

Willard was edged by Bellevue 7-6, and New London was swamped by Clearview 42-7.

JACK JACOBS MAKES FINAL APPEARANCE

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Marking the final appearance on home grounds for Jack Jacobs, sensational Ram halfback who will report soon for air cadet training in the army air force, the Cleveland pro grid team will face the Chicago Cardinals tomorrow with confidence of a victory.

No changes in the starting lineup have been announced by Coach Dutch Clark. The Cardinals, who have the best team they've had in years, will attempt to score another victory over the Rams. The first came in Buffalo with a score of 7-0, but the experts claim that the Rams out-played the Chicago eleven despite points earned.

Mansfielders Take Off Hats to Fighting Team

See Most Colorful Grid Classic Ever Staged At Stadium Field

MANSFIELDERS were still taking off their hats today to a battling Tyger football team and they were discussing a lot of other things that took place at the most colorful, hometown football classic they had witnessed in years.

For one thing, there was that 35-minute intermission period when Massillon's Washington high school band, which rates as mighty as its football teams, put on a show that met with expectations.

And they were proud of their own red-coated high school band as it strutted over the gridiron and gave some "extra special" numbers that took some of the musical honors, too.

* * *

Those 9,000 fans who jammed the stands all around the field and the extra 300 or so who were looking over the fence from the hillside at the south end of the field, got a thrill when the Massillonites marched across the field in military formation.

They liked it too, when Massillon's Tiger pounced out on the field, and went through its antics while marching along with the band.

Then there was the "blackout" patriotic number which the Mansfield band put on, with Mary McCartney, high school vocalist, singing "This is Worth Fighting For" as a spotlight directed spectator's attention to the American flag at the far end of the field.

The crowd came to hushed attention at kick-off time when both bands assembled at the flag pole and played the "Star Spangled Banner."

Among those 9,000 who were packed in the stadium was 13-year-old Melvin Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Watson, 197 Gerke avenue, who has been an invalid for four years, due to a hip injury.

* * *

Melvin thought the game was "just swell." He watched it from an ambulance cot. He saw most all of the plays and his father, sitting nearby, told him about those he couldn't see.

It was Melvin's first football game since his hip ailment put him to bed. He was going to Newman school at the time.

Other sideline notes:

Best tackle of the night was credited to Umpire A. B. Long, veteran Newark official. Trying to get out of Bob Graber's way after the Massillon halfback caught a punt in his own territory, "Abie" ran full tilt into Graber, holding him up until Mansfielders could complete the tackle. The Mansfield athletic board will now decide whether or not to award Long a letter.

* * *

Introduced as navy recruits after the entire audience had given the pledge to the flag were Gradon D. Kuppinger, Alexander S. Petroff and Glenn K. Heston, all of Mansfield; Robert A. Hillis and Robert G. Wertz of Galion; William C. Browning of Shiloh and Paul E. Sipe of Crestline. They were presented by Lieut. Robert S. Griffith of Cleveland.

Commotion down at the south end on the west side of the stadium was due to a fight that broke out between a spectator who must have taken too many slugs some time before slugging started with other spectators he had been annoying. The incident was over in a few moments and the spectators' attention went back to the ball game.

* * *

Hedges Principal Glen L. Robinson who never misses a game was proudly telling friends that while his school didn't win any trophy honors in the school scrap drive, it had something to show for its efforts—a $240 check.

* * *

Yes, the game had the usual stray dog entering the festivities. This one did just what all dogs do, at football games. It marched along with the bands, responded to whistles from spectators and later on it was joined by another dog. They disappeared when an exciting moment in the game directed attention away from them.

* * *

In the press box last night were Jim Schlemmer, sports editor of the Akron Beacon-Journal, Luther Emery, sports editor of the Massillon Independent, and Ralph "Spiv" Harris, sports editor of the Mt. Vernon News.

Schlemmer was still wearing the Massillon band ring given him last winter at the Massillon Boosters club banquet, and boasted proudly, "I've never taken it off."

Emery, looking through a pair of high-powered binoculars, spotted his wife in the Massillon crowd on the opposite side of the field, and sneaked a wave of the hand, which was returned.

* * *

Also in the stands were the head coach and an assistant coach from Warren scouting Massillon. "It's no humiliation for Mansfield to be defeated by Niles this year," declared the Warren mentor. But Niles would never have beaten the fighting Tyger team of last night.

* * *

One of the busiest, but most disappointed spectators at the game was The News-Journal photographer. He took 20 or more pictures of the pep rally in Central Park, the snake dance that followed, and at the game, only to discover later that they were out of focus. Some little gadget in the intricate mechanism of his press Graflex had worked loose.

* * *

Sousa's "Thunder" broke loose to the beat of marching feet when more than 3,950 enthusiastic Mansfielders mobbed Central park for the pre-game pep rally to greet the Senior high school and military bands that started the "sea team" spirit lasting the rest of the night.

* * *

Seven minutes before the parade began a lusty siren tore through the crowd's mild roar as a fire truck headed west on Park avenue west to break up band formation. At first onlookers thought it was a publicity gag, but as the fire truck bore down on the conjested traffic, people gave way to the "fire fighting demon."

Quickly dressing their lines, Etabel Hunter, head majorette, and Drum Major Ralph Schuler, led the school band down around the square followed by the blaring brasses of Corp. James H. Cory's outfit.

Although no athletic contests were scheduled for the rally, a brief tug-of-war was held between A. LeMoine Derr and Dr. W. E. Wygant who was trying to pull the song leader up onto the truck platform. Wygant emerged victorious.

Gil Baird, introducing the pep speakers, kept the public howling over his jokes. For each snappy talk given by the speakers the peppers cheered and seemed ready to tackle Massillon themselves. In fact so anxious were they to sing, "Fight the Team," that they started in on the band's introduction of the number resulting in the most off-key conglomeration of miscellaneous noises which only a true team supporter could endure.

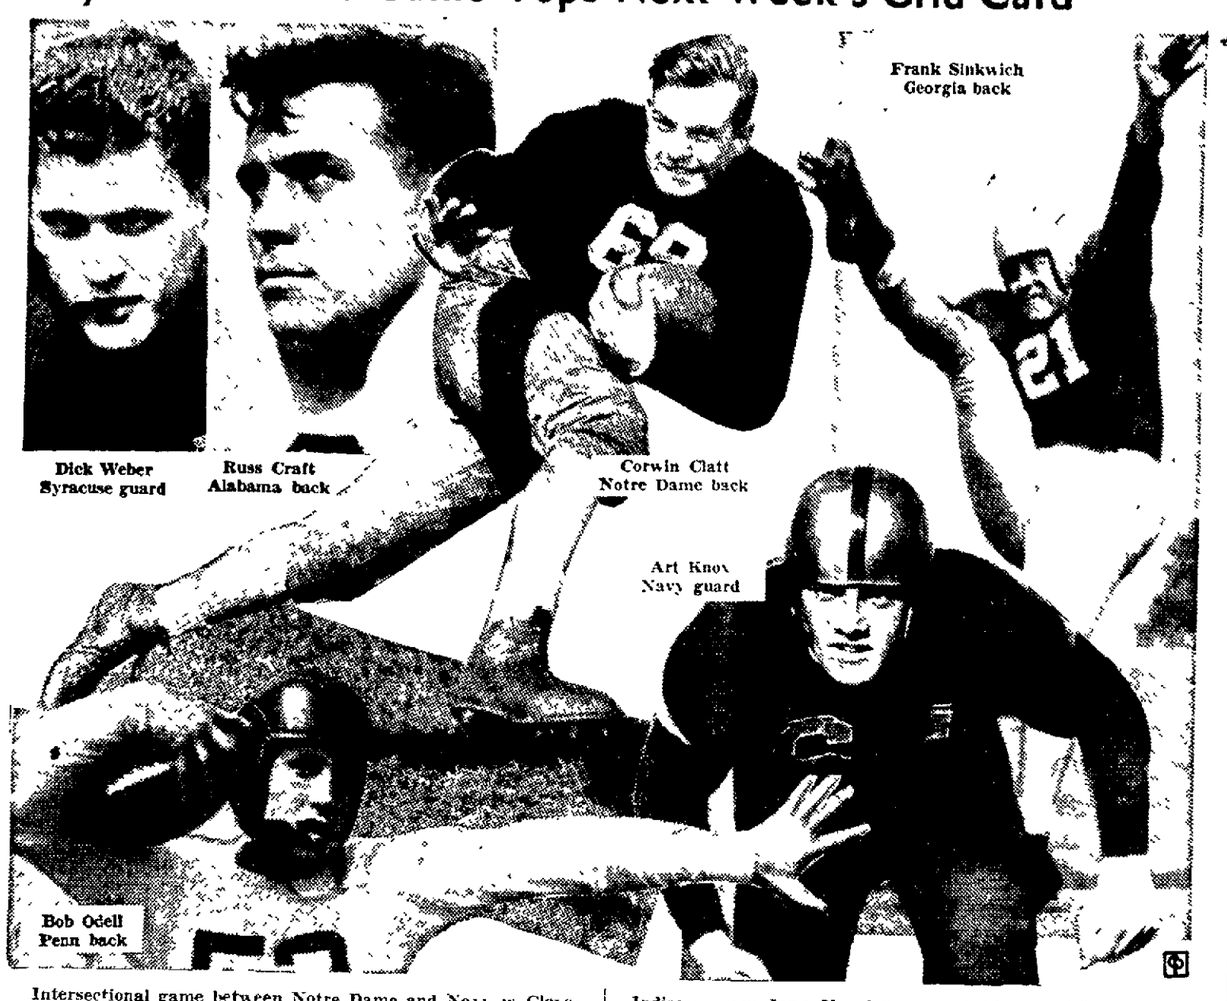
From then on bedlam broke loose. Snake dancers led by Dorothy Norris forming a line about three blocks long clamored through the Mansfield-Leland hotel, in and out of traffic, through the American Legion until the deafening din of horns sent officers scurrying to Douglas avenue where the supporters were warned to keep a straight line.

Defying even pushing cars touching their clothes, the snakers tore through traffic with a few stragglers here and there pausing for breath. But the snake dance went on with original strength until the pupils halted at the Stadium gates for admission to the field where they gave their last breath for a husky cheer and to tell those seated near them that they really had a rally!

Navy-Notre Dame Game Tops Next Week's Grid Card



Intersectional game between Notre Dame and Navy in Cleveland and the tough conference encounters between Georgia and Alabama in the Southeastern and Ohio State and Wisconsin in the Big Nine headline the juicy football fare for Saturday, Oct. 31. Other important games include Duke against Georgia Tech, Indiana versus Iowa Naval Cadets, Michigan and Illinois, Pennsylvania and the Army and Syracuse and North Carolina Pre-Flight. Biggest crowd of the day is expected at Cleveland for the Irish-Middies' clash. The game is to be held in the Municipal stadium, which seats in excess of 80,000.

Bears Bid Farewell To Halas

But Continue Drive For Pro Grid Title.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— When the Chicago Bears entertain the Philadelphia Eagles Sunday, it may be the last game for the duration in which the mighty Bruins will be performing under guidance of Owner-Coach George S. Halas, who expects to enter the navy soon.

Already the professional experts are asking, "what will happen to the Bears without Halas?" It is no secret that go-getter George has been largely responsible for their success—for the most brilliant record of any club in National league history.

The Bears, now shooting for their third straight league championship, and their fourth since the play-offs started in 1933, occupy the lofty berth in pro football that the New York Yankees held for years in baseball.

One of the principal reasons for the success of Halas and his Bears was his unrelenting insistence upon team spirit. The chunky grid magnate realized that lack of team spirit was the prime factor in the professional game's lack of public appeal in its earlier and less successful days. In the pioneer era of the commercial sport, top-flight college players had a tendency to lose "the old college try" even in their senior year on the campus and to regard "spirit" as a matter of jest when they started playing for dollars and doughnuts.

Halas was one of the pioneers in pro football. He moved in on the game shortly after failing to land a job with the New York Yankees team. From the start he was credited with one of the gridiron's keener minds. But it was his insistence that the public demanded a club that really wanted to win every game that ultimately won him greatest acclaim and developed his Bear franchise into an asset now worth something like a quarter-million dollars.

The other big factor in the Bears success is hard work. And Halas sets the pace in this. He works at football early and late. He has long daily sessions with his assistants. Halas and his players have regular classroom drills or "skull sessions" in which fundamentals of strategy often are stressed just as much as if the squad comprised the rawest rookies instead of the game's most effective performers.

* * *

Halas has been responsible for several innovations that helped pro football over the early rough spots. He brought Red Grange into the game right after the "Galloping Ghost" concluded his sensational career at Illinois. Grange attracted huge crowds and starred with the Bears for eight years.

Halas hoisted the T-formation to its present respected niche in the gridiron picture.

Football men long ago quit crying, "break up the Bears!" because they knew that they would remain a menacing unit as long as they had the inspiring guidance of Halas. But when Halas joins the navy, it will be interesting to see what happens to the Bears.

Outstanding Players Meet

Good Gridiron Menu Dished Up For Today.

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK — (AP) — Today's jammed football program not only lists numerous contests in which unbeaten teams jeopardize their records but also pits outstanding players against each other in individual duels for the headlines.

* * *

There's the meeting of Notre Dame and undefeated Illinois at Champaign, Ill., for instance. That contest alone would lure thousands to the stadium but in addition the spectators will see Angelo Bertelli, ace Irish passer, tangle with Alex Agase, the Illini's high scoring guard.

* * *

Down in Dixie it is a battle of centers with Capt. Joe Domnanovich of Alabama leading the Crimson Tide against a Kentucky team that lost to Georgia by only a single point. Star of the Wildcat line is Charlie Walker, also a snapper-back.

Ohio State and Gene Fekete, 192 pounds of bruising sophomore fullback, invade Northwestern which in turn offers Otto Graham, who completed 20 passes last week in the losing fray with Michigan.

Michigan and Minnesota tangle for the little brown jug in Minneapolis with Tom Kuzma bringing the groans and Bill Daley the cheers from the Gopher crowd.

That famed UCLA line, with Capt. Charles Fears at tackle, will try to stop the unbeaten march of Santa Clara, whose roster includes Jess Freitas, a proven pitcher. A similar situation prevails in the southwest where Texas has a scatback in Jackie Fields and Rice a smooth tackle in Ted Brannon.

* * *

The east also will have its duels with Eddie Prokop and his Georgia Tech teammates visiting Annapolis for a tussle with Navy, who relies on the slashing runs of Alan Cameron.

At Philadelphia it will be the line plunging of Bert Stiff, the human howitzer in the Penn lineup, against the passing of Columbia's Paul Governali. Army will turn Capt. Hank Mazure loose on the Harvards, who will counter with Fullback Wayne Johnson.

Other games dotting the midwestern landscape are Iowa at Indiana; Nebraska at Oklahoma, Iowa State at Missouri; Wisconsin at Purdue, Great Lakes at Michigan State and Kansas at Kansas State.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Confidentially, we don't know any more about the shifting of the Army-Navy game to Annapolis than has been announced, but if transportation is the only reason, we can't see why it shouldn't be just as good to keep it in Philly and sell tickets only to Philadelphians . . And if the situation is so serious as to require this action on the nation's No. 1 grid game (especially to service men), why shouldn't the same restrictions be put on all other football games? . . To pick one example, the Yale-Princeton game recently shifted to New York so more folks could see it, should be returned to Palmer Stadium and ticket sales limited to residents of Princeton, Princeton Junction, Penn's Neck, Plainsboro, Kingston and Rocky Hill. They'd all be in town doing their Saturday shopping, anyway.

and the civil aeronautic authority immediately began a three-way investigation of the tragedy. Mt. San Jacinto rises precipitately from the desert near this one-time winter resort of Hollywood film favorites. The resort has been taken over as an army base.

Many of the victims, hopelessly trapped in the passenger ship, were burned beyond recognition.

Rainger, one of Hollywood's most noted composers, was the author of such popular songs as "Love In Bloom," "Moanin' Low," "June In January," and "Take a Lesson From the Lark," some of which reached the status of classics in the popular music field.

He recently concluded scores for "Iceland," the latest vehicle starring Sonja Henie, and for another film, "Coney Island."

The other dead were:

Capt. Charles F. Pedley, pilot, Irving, Tex. L. F. Reppeti, first officer, Fort Worth, Tex. Estelle Regan, stewardess, Dallas, Tex.

Passengers: C. M. Mont, Los Angeles. Lt. Joseph R. Rosser, Santa Ana, Cal., army air base. Frank Bird, identified as a Lockheed aircraft employe. M. C. Henderson, of Phoenix, Ariz., Arizona state industrial commission member. C. Baker (address unknown, but said to be accompanying Henderson.) B. R. West, jr., of the Allison Engineering Corp. E. H. Wallace, of Las Vegas, N. M. L. A. Hege, reportedly from Winston-Salem, N. C.

The ship left Los Angeles for Dallas and New York at 4:30 p. m. (PWT) yesterday and crashed approximately 45 minutes later.

FAVORS YEAR'S TRAINING PLAN

Senators Overriding Protest Of FDR on Teen-Age Draft Clause.

overseas and into combat before they have had a year's training.

Sen. Norris (Ind., Neb.) proposed a milder amendment, limiting the ban to those under 19.

Mr. Roosevelt, in a letter to Sen. Gurney (R., S. D.) in charge of the bill, vigorously opposed any limitations. The president insisted that the administrative task in the army is so great that any restrictions would create great difficulties.

Gen. Marshall explained a year's training is required in forming new combat divisions, but that riflemen, radio men and some other classes of soldiers can be put into combat areas with experienced men with less than a year's training.

Sen. Taft (R., Ohio), who urged that the draft be confined to those 19 and up, declared that the war department plans to use teen age draftees with less than a year's training.

Taft suggested that married men between 20 and 30, even though they have children, be drafted before 18-year-olds are taken.

Both Taft and Norris called upon Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, to exercise authority given him by congress to revise age groups and call men to service by age divisions.

Bivins Heads For Big Time

Clevelander Picked As Man of Week.

(By International News Service)

There can only be one man of this rather dull week on the sports front and that is a midnight dark colored boy named Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland who last Tuesday night upset Bob Pastor, one of the country's leading heavyweights and immediately moved into a most important spot for advancement up the fistic ladder.

* * *

Brother Bivins, a light-heavyweight who weighed only 177½ to Pastor's 184, took a split decision from Pastor and evened his score with Broadway Bob who had licked him in their first meeting last April.

* * *

Jimmy, a terrific puncher but somewhat spotty as a fighter, letting loose only in spurts, was awarded the fight because Pastor punched low a couple of times and was penalized. This didn't stop his manager Claude Shane, a jewelry salesman, from announcing he was bringing the mid-western favorite to New York to campaign him on the big time.

The Pastor win was Jimmy's sixth over good opposition this year. Among his other victims were middleweight Billy Soose, light-heavyweight Gus Lesnevich, Joey Maxim, Joe Muscato and Tami Mauriello.

New York may get a look at this new "sensation" on Nov. 27 against the winner of the Lee Savold-Mauriello fight scheduled for Oct. 30 at Madison Square Garden.

* * *

He will arrive here Monday and begin workouts immediately. There is also some talk of he and Pastor getting together in a "rubber" bout in December back in Cleveland.

WRIGHTS GIVEN CREDIT AT LAST

Smithsonian Changes Its Mind About Plane Pioneers.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Smithsonian institution gave full credit today to the Wright Brothers as the airplane's true pioneers, as freely as for 28 years it had firmly withheld it in favor of Samuel P. Langley.

Dr. Charles G. Abbott, who inherited the controversy in 1928 when he became secretary of the Smithsonian, said he now acknowledged without reservation the following:

"Wilbur and Orville Wright made the first sustained flights in a heavier-than-air machine at Kitty Hawk, N. C., in 1903, and the 1914 flight of Langley's machine, as reconditioned and altered did not prove that it could have flown in 1903 before them."

Tracks of a jaguarandi have been found in northern Florida. This critter is a tropical wildcat, has a long tail, and looks something like an otter. Sly, fierce and nocturnal, it is rarely seen, even in Mexico, where it is fairly common. It is death on dogs and when occasion offers, will do away with chickens, goats, pigs and calves. Therefore this jaguarandi is considered an undesirable immigrant.

SYRACUSE FAVORED AGAINST CORNELL

SYRACUSE, N. Y. — (INS) — A confident, undefeated Syracuse football team today encountered a down-trodden Cornell eleven, which has failed to win a game since its season-opener, and the odds rode on the local big Orange squad.

Winner of four straight and scored upon only once so far, Syracuse again depended upon an attack built largely around the passing of Tommy Maines and Dick Whitesell.

TILLIE THE TOILER

MADE UP YOUR MIND YET WHAT BRANCH OF THE SERVICE YOU ARE GOING TO SPECIALIZE IN, TILLIE?
WELL, NOT DEFINITELY
I'VE DECIDED ON COMMUNICATIONS, IT SOUNDS LIKE SOMETHING THAT WON'T BE TOO STRENUOUS
WHY DON'T YOU GO IN, TOO?
IT DOESN'T APPEAL TO ME. I'VE BEEN THINKING SERIOUSLY ABOUT THE MOTOR CORPS
MOTOR CORPS!! GOSH, THAT'S A JOB FOR A MAN!
SAY, I'M IN THIS ARMY TO DO A MAN'S JOB!
10 19
MISS JONES, I AM SERGEANT POTTS YOUR INSTRUCTOR IN THE MOTOR CORPS SCHOOL
I AM SURE I AM GOING TO LIKE THE COURSE
YOU WILL FIND SOME OVER ALLS IN THAT CLOSET, PUT THEM ON AND WE'LL GO TO WORK ON THIS MOTOR
OKAY
HE SEEMS LIKE A NICE CHAP. I'M GOING TO REALLY GO TO WORK ON THIS JOB, I'LL WALLOW IN GREASE AND GRIME TO PLEASE HIM
I'M SORRY, YOU WON'T BE ABLE TO WEAR THOSE GLOVES, YOU COULDN'T WORK WITH THEM ON GOOD GRIEF I'LL GET MY HANDS SOILED, IF I DON'T MISS JONES, I HOPE YOU WILL FIND THE WORK IN THE MOTOR CORPS SCHOOL INTERESTING, SO YOU WILL ENJOY YOUR COURSE HERE FIRST I WILL SHOW YOU HOW TO REMOVE THESE SPARK PLUGS
THAT'S RIGHT NOW- REPLACE THEM AND CONNECT THE WIRES
I'M HAVING A BIT OF DIFFICULTY HERE
BETTER LET ME HELP YOU WITH THAT YOU CERTAINLY ARE TRYING TO MAKE THIS WORK INTERESTING, SERGEANT POTTS, THAT IS MY HAND YOU'RE HOLDING
TO GET THE MOST OUT OF YOUR COURSE IN THE MOTOR CORPS SCHOOL YOU SHOULD KNOW EVERYTHING ABOUT THE ENGINE THAT MAKES A CAR RUN
THE MOTOR OF AN AUTOMOBILE IS A VERY INTRICATE BIT OF MECHANISM
THERE ARE ANY ONE OF A DOZEN GADGETS ON THIS MOTOR, WHICH IF REMOVED, WOULD MAKE THE CAR USELESS
THERE'S SOMETHING YOU HAVEN'T MENTIONED, SERGEANT, GASOLINE! I KNOW!!
BETTER LEAVE THAT MOTOR ALONE TILL I RETURN, TILLIE
I'LL JUST TIGHTEN THIS NUT ON THE GAS-LINE
MERCY! I PULLED IT UP TOO MUCH AND BROKE THE COUPLING
WANK
WHEN SERGEANT POTTS DISCOVERS THAT HE'LL BE AS MAD AS A WET HEN 'BECAUSE I DIDN'T OBEY HIS INSTRUCTIONS
NOW, WHAT DID YOU DO?
WHAT DO YOU MEAN?
SAY, I KNOW ENOUGH ABOUT WOMEN TO KNOW WHEN THEY PUT ON THE WAR PAINT TO MAKE THEMSELVES IRRESISTIBLE THEY ARE AS GUILTY OF SOMETHING AS THE CAT THAT ATE THE CANARY
YOU'VE BEEN IN THE MOTOR CORPS SCHOOL A WEEK, TILLIE, LET'S SEE IF YOU CAN RE-ASSEMBLE THIS MOTOR WHILE I AM GONE
OKAY
IT WAS NO TROUBLE AT ALL, SERGEANT
WELL YOU'VE MADE A FEW MISTAKES, YOU'VE SWITCHED THE CARBURETOR AND THE DISTRIBUTER, THE WATER PUMP IS MISSING, THE FAN IS ON BACKWARD AND THE OIL-LINE IS CONNECTED TO THE WIND SHIELD WIPER OTHERWISE, IT'S OKAY
